U. S. Army Head In London; European Invasion Seen

OPENING OF SECOND FRONT THOUGHT NEAR

Rommel Army Launches Heavy New Assault In Drive Toward Egypt.

CRIMEA WAR FLARES

Developments Point to Major Offensive By Axis In Middle East.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, arrived in London today on the heels of British reports that the bulk of the American army was training for a mass invasion of continental Europe.

Gen. Marshall was accompanied by Harry Hopkins, chairman of the British-American munitions assignments board, and by senior military advisers.

London newspapers yesterday declared American and British expeditionary forces eventually would strike together at the heart of industrial Germany through France.

Thousands of American troops already are training in battle maneuvers in northern Ireland.

Recent dispatches have suggested that if British and American troops should open a second front, as repeatedly urged by Russia, they might attack along the French channel coast or through Norway.

Meanwhile, signs of a major new campaign in the middle east were seen in a series of violent Axis assaults ranging from North Africa through Egypt and Malta to the Russian Crimea.

With spring mud and snow bogging central Russia's battlefields, these significant reports indicated that Adolf Hitler may be preparing a drive to the south:

Africa—A London spokesman intimated Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis armies had started a new offensive, breaking the weeks-old stalemate on the Libyan desert front 100 miles southwest of Tobruk.

Advices reaching London said 125,000 Axis troops supported by 30 squadrons of aircraft were on the move in what may be the opening of a spring drive to conquer Egypt and smash through east of Suez toward Russia's southern flank.

These advices said Gen. Rommel had two German armored divisions, an Italian armored division and six infantry divisions to hurl against the British, who have been weakened by the departure of Australian veterans from North Africa to fight in defense of their homeland.

Both the German and Italian high commands said British ad-

SETS DATES

FDR Fixes 'I Am American' and Mother's Day.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt today designated Sunday, May 17, as "I am an American" day and urged that it be observed in a manner to impress on all citizens "the duties and opportunities of citizenship and its special responsbltes in a nation at war."

He said in a proclamation it was even more essential in time of war than in time of peace for a people to understand fully "the form and genius of their government and the responsibilities of citizenship."

In another proclamation, the president set aside Sunday, May 10, as Mother's day, again under terms of an act of congress. He ordered the flag flown from all government buildings on that day and asked the people also to fly the flag on their homes and by token of affection to "express the love and reverence which we feel for the mothers of our country."

GETS LIFE SENTENCE.

LIMA, O. —(INS)— James V. Malony, 28, was sentenced to life imprisonment in Ohio penitentiary. Malony was convicted of second degree murder in the silk stocking slaying of Mrs. Goldie Siler, an attendant at the Lima State hospital for the criminal insane.

Oh, Pshaw! U. S. Taboos 24-Inch Skirt Lengths

But WPB Order Says They Won't Be Any Longer Either

Of all the sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: "It might have been."

Mr. Whittier wasn't thinking about the present situation when he penned those words, because he never ran into the War Production Board or any of its rulings, but maybe the quotation applies anyway.

At least some of the folks, particularly the men, are going to feel a little rueful about an announcement that came from the WPB in Washington today. The agency ruled that women's skirts won't be getting shorter as a result of the war. They won't be getting longer either. Instead, they're to be stabilized at present lengths to save cloth and prevent existing wardrobes from becoming obsolete.

Maybe you hadn't heard about the heavy discussion that's been going around concerning the length of milady's skirts. What with men giving up cuffs, vests, and double-breasted suits to conserve material, there's been a lot of talk about how similar conservation can be accomplished in women's clothes.

As a sort of "trial balloon" to determine reaction around and about the country, government economists a few weeks ago put out hints indicating they would shortly issue orders for garment manufacturers to lift skirts a little higher to conserve materials—perhaps pegging skirt lengths at 17 inches.

As might be expected, first reaction came from the motion picture industry. Never averse to seizing upon anything that would give the film city some publicity, as well as a better chance to display the charms of its starlets, the industry quickly served notice it would be willing—even cheerful, to co-operate.

In fact, some film spokesmen favored the idea of going an inch or two better on the theory that "freezing" skirt hemlines 17 inches above the ground would be entirely too conservative.

The younger actresses particularly, like Janet Blair, Marie Wilson, Anne Gwynne and others, with a little encouragement and tutelage from studio press agents, came out with statements that it wouldn't be a bad idea to raise the figure and the skirt to 24 inches.

Directors and cameramen also supported the idea, particularly for those with shapely underpinnings. They pointed out that artistically the 24-inch level is defi-

With the aid of a young Mansfield lady with very pretty eyes, the photographer gives you an idea of what might have been—if the War Production Board hadn't issued its order today stabilizing present lengths of dresses, instead of shortening 'em to conserve materials, as had been predicted recently. Upper left shows a 17-inch skirt, upper right one of the 20-inch length. Lower left shows a skirt exactly 24 inches from the ground, as proposed by Hollywood. Lower right shows what you'd have put up with if the 24-inch plan had been carried out.

LABOR HEADS PLEDGE UNITY IN WAR WORK

Murray, Green Call on Critics to Join Effort, 'Not Stab Us In Back.'

SPEAK AT RALLY

Pittsburgh Meeting Ends Feud That Started In 1936; FDR Gets Credit.

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH—CIO President Philip Murray and AFL President William Green, rivals in peacetime but united in war, symbolized labor's unity last night by pledging their organized millions to "stand together" to help win the war and exhorting labor's critics to "join labor, not stab us in the back."

The two labor leaders met on a speakers platform—for the first time since labor ranks split in 1936—before a cheering audience of more than 4,000 workers at a joint AFL-CIO "unite for victory" rally.

The ruddy-faced Green, in thunderous overtones, and the soft-spoken Murray called upon their followers to "produce, produce and produce" for victory. Then they each answered the "unthinking people" they charged with attacking labor and questioning labor's patriotism.

Both voiced their pledges of unity and answers to labor's critics and a nationwide radio broadcast over the mutual network. Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, joined them in the broadcast.

Green referred to Murray as "my dear friend" and later as "my friend, my collaborator and fellow-American" in token, he said, of "this spirit of unity and collaboration" between the two labor organizations. Murray in turn expressed his "pride and personal gratification" to appear on the platform with Green and said their presence together "tells beyond words that we know this is labor's war."

"I come to you without reservation," Green said. "I am determined and willing to stand with President Murray and his associates."

Reiterating labor's determination to do its utmost to win the war, Murray said "we (AFL and CIO) propose to go down the long road hand in hand, working together toward attainment of our national objectives." He added:

"You CIO men in this hall, collaborate and cooperate with AFL unions in your community."

Green gave the meeting an historical significance by saying:

"This is the first time since the slight difference within the family of labor that two men, clothed with the responsibility of millions,

JOIN HANDS

U. S., Mexico Agree to Total Wartime Collaboration.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The United States and Mexico today were joined in a six-point program of "total" wartime collaboration worked out between high government officials and Mexican Foreign Minister Padilla.

This country's war effort will immeidately benefit through Mexico's promise to participate in the construction of merchant shipping and provide high octane aviation gasoline.

Construction of the vessels will be started as soon as it is decided what size ships Mexico can best produce and American tools and materials can be rushed there.

CHANGES LOCALE

Legion To Stage Boys' State At Wesleeyan This Year.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— State headquarters of the American Legion said today the seventh annual Buckeye Boys' State, spoonsored by the Legion, will be held sometime in June on the Ohio Weesleyan University campus at Delaware.

The institute in past years has been held at the state fairgrounds in Columbus but the army is taking over the fairgrounds May 1 for war purposes. The camp probably will be held in the first half of June.

Valiant Forces Face Crisis In Long Struggle

Fall Back to Prepared Positions; Enemy Continues Onslaught With Superior Numbers of Men, Guns, and Planes; Rangoon Raid Confirmed.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The vast Japanese superiority in men, armament and planes finally took its toll on Batan peninsula today, when Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright advised the war department that he has been forced to make a general but orderly withdrawal to new defense positions under the terrific enemy onslaught that has marked the fighting so far this week.

Indicating that the battle of Batan has reached a desperate stage, the war department's morning communique said "our troops withdrew during the night of April 7 to a previously prepared position."

The announcement came after four successive days of terrific aerial and land bombardment during which the enemy poured wave after wave of fresh troops into the fray in an effort to smother the already greatly outnumbered American-Filipino forces. Casualties on both sides have been heavy, according to the war department.

Disclosure that the general withdrawal had been taken marked the first official admission in weeks that the entire American-Filipino battle line had been changed on Batan.

Since the renewed Japanese attack started two weeks ago yesterday, the defenders had been fighting along a line about midway down the Batan peninsula beginning near Abucay.

The Abucay defense line was established Feb. 26 when the defenders staged a surprise counter-attack which forced the Japanese back from one half to five miles all along the front.

Position of the new defense line was not identified by the war department, and spokesmen explained that Wainwright apparently has not had time to inform Washington how far he had withdrawn.

Mention during the past few days of heavy casualties on both sides, indicated the ferocity of the battle and made it plain that the American position was becoming increasingly dark due to the fact that Gen. Wainwright's forces could not afford the losses that the onslaught has cost them.

Meanwhile the war department confirmed reports from India that U. S. army flying fortress bombers staged a successful raid on the Japanese-held harbor of Rangoon on April 3.

Several tons of bombs were dropped, damaging docks and port

PRESSURE: U. S., Aussie Fliers Push Attacks on Enemy Bases

(By United Press)

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—United States and Australian air forces reported new successes in their unrelenting offensive today as United Nations supreme leaders met in the first of a series of major war conferences.

Allied planes fought through three separate screens of crack Japanese fighters to attack Koepang, the Japanese invasion base in Dutch Timor, 330 miles northwest of Australia, yesterday, a communique announced. Only one Allied fighter plane was lost and a plane previously reported missing was found and returned to duty.

It was announced also that in their raid yesterday on Lae, in the New Guinea invasion zone, the Allied planes, in addition to smashing five to six grounded Japanese fighters and starting fires, shot down the only Japanese fighter plane which challenged them. This plane was caught in concentrated fire and torn to pieces. It was known that some Japanese grounded bombers were hit at Lae, but no estimate was made of the number.

A total of 116 enemy airplanes were reported destroyed so far against 14 Allied planes.

It was indicated that a defense conference held this morning was of urgent importance.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Prime Minister John Curtin, Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, commanding United Nations air forces; Lieut. Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Australian commander of ground forces, and Vice Adm. Herbert F. Leary, United States Navy com-

BLOCKS VOTE ON NEW CITY BOARD

G. O. P. Majority in Council Sidetracks Plan to Create Investment Group.

Legislation paving the way for investment of city funds into federal government securities was ordered referred to city council's finance committee last night after council, meeting in regular session, blocked attempts to have it passed as an emergency measure.

Sponsored by Fifth Ward Democratic Councilman Fred Miller, the measure provides for the creation of a city investment board with powers to invest idle money in government securities.

Councilman Michael Mihalick, only other Democratic councilman, failed to support Miller's motion, and, lacking a second sponsor, the legislation was referred to the finance committee.

Reason for council's attitude

Bromfield Gift to Perpetuate Memory of 'Aunty' Bradford

The memory of "Aunty" Bradford, Mansfield colored woman who financed the first public library here more than a half century ago, will be perpetuated in a $6,000 gift from Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield for a memorial library at Karamu house, inter-racial settlement house in Cleveland it was announced today.

Bromfield, who mentioned "Aunty" Bradford several times in his novel, "The Farm," asked that his donation be used for a library in the theater unit of the new house. He said the gift was a tribute to the memory of the venerable colored woman whose library was destroyed in the Congregational church fire two months ago.

"Aunty" Bradford, once of the few colored members of the Congregational church back in the 1880's, was able to save considerable money from real estate investments. With it she established a library in the church, making it available to the public. Bromfield called the church benefactor "Aunty" Walker in his novel.

Bromfield and Russell Jelliff, former Mansfielder and now co-director of Karamu house, used the church library frequently while they were young men in Mansfield.

"Aunty" Bradford's picture, which hung in the church library for more than 50 years, was destroyed in the church fire in February.

Councilman, Auditor Clash In Dispute Over Payment of Bill

The city's purchase of $175 worth of lawbooks over a four-year period extending back as far as 1938 precipitated a sharp exchange of words at last night's council meeting between Councilman George C. Kyle and City Auditor Paul L. Kelley.

But it all turned out all right. Kyle sounded the first gun and Kelley came right back with a sharp reply that brought an apology from the councilman.

The dispute revolved around payment of the bill for $175 for the books purchased by the municipal court during 1938, 1939, 1940, and 1941.

Kyle said that the bills had been approved by the municipal court and sent to Kelley for payment but that the bills had not been paid and that the invoices were "lost."

Kelley answered quickly, stating that Kyle's "ignorance probably excuses the remarks he has made."

"You'd rather take some one's word for this than check into the facts of the case yourself, wouldn't you?" Kelley asked Kyle.

The city auditor then explained that the books had been purchased by the municipal court but that the court had neglected to approve payment of the bills out of their operating expenses. Kelley said that duplicate bills were also sent to him and that he sent them to the office of the municipal court for approval but never got them back.

"If all of the city departments operated in this manner, holding up payment of their bills for three and four years, where do you think the city would be?" Kelley asked Kyle. ("Your 1942

COOKING SCHOOL ATTENDANCE UP

1,000 Throng Theater For Second Day of Instruction on Food Preparation.

Following a record-breaking opening day attendance yesterday, when 900 were present, The News-Journal's annual cooking school attracted more than 1,000 women today for the second session of the four-day school being conducted at the Ohio theater.

Homemakers present at the opening program yesterday brought their friends and neighbors today to share in the helpful culinary suggestions made by Mrs. Emily Lautz, nationally-known food lecturer, in charge of the school which opens daily at 9 a. m. Sessions will continue tomorrow and Friday.

Mrs. Lautz continued her emphasis on the preservation of vitamins, particularly in cooked vegetables, and showed her audience how to make a steamed carrot pudding, cook frozen peas so as to retain the highest vitamin content, and prepare a des-

RELIEF DROPS

Expenditures Nearly 2 Million Below Last Year.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The welfare department today estimated March poor relief expenditures at $1,242,000, bringing to $3,819,409 the total for the first three months, a drop of $1,769 811 below the corresponding 1941 quarter.

The total for March, based on reports from 113 of the state's 154 relief areas, was about $27,000 under February expenditures and approximately $565,188 less than for March, 1941.

FORMULA: India Draws New Defense Plan In Negotiations

(By United Press)

NEW DELHI, India—Indian quarters reported today that national leaders, enlisting the mediatory aid of Louis A. Johnston, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to India, had worked out a new defense formula which they believed would be acceptable to Great Britain.

As the result of the reports, which were unconfirmed, there was a slightly more optimistic atmosphere.

Hope was expressed that, if agreement on defense were effected, a formula might be drafted under which an Indian national government might be formed.

Nationalists had said that intervention by President Roosevelt in behalf of the United Nations was the sole remaining hope of agreement between Britain and Nationalist political leaders on Indian defense.

Nationalists of the all-India congress, at a meeting last night, turned down a new British war cabinet offer and announced that they would inform Sir Stafford Cripps, war cabinet envoy, this morning of their decision.

Nationalist leaders said that even if they failed to reach agreement with Britain on Indian defense, as part of negotiations on the British offer of post-war dominion status, they would publish a message to the Indian people urging them to resist aggression by whatever means available.

It was understood that the new British proposals, whcih the Nationalists found unacceptable, agreed to the appointment of an Indian defense minister but with limitations which, in the Nation-

CHAPTER XVII

"Say—when are you going to Europe? Not soon?"

"In September."

"Whyn't you tell me?"

"I didn't know it until today."

"Say — that's tough! I'll be darned if I know what I'm going to do without you." Drake thwacked Parris resoundingly to lessen the sentiment of the remark.

"I don't know what I'll do without you, either. My grandmother arranged it all with Dr. Tower. He told me. They just move me around like a chair or something. Just to suit themselves."

"Parris, you and me have been in pretty much the same kind of boat so much of the time. You remember I said that right here at this corner about three years ago. We still are, in lots of ways. My girl can't see me, and won't and yours can't come out in the open either and go around with you like other girls with their fellows."

"Cassie's not exactly my girl, Drake. Dr. Tower is very peculiar—"

"I should say he is. I think he's kind of crazy — keeping Cassie shut up all the time away from everybody. But Dr. Gordon's not crazy. He just don't like me."

"Drake, you take on like everything was over. You can get things fixed up all right, but it's like Louise says, you got to have a little patience."

"I haven't got any patience. I don't give a damn whether they're fixed up or not." Drake spoke louder and louder. He was feeding his temper with itself and was beyond listening.

"Now, listen, Drake—"

"Oh, let me alone! You don't know how I feel. Don't talk to me, Parris, I—I just can't stand any more." He turned quickly and almost ran up Federal street.

For the first time Parris drew back a little from Drake to get a better perspective. He realized, as he never had, that Drake could be completely illogical and inconsistent, and then feel terribly hurt because he was misunderstood. He hated to admit it, but he knew that Drake not only didn't think things out, but that he wasn't really capable of thinking when his emotions were involved.

A new and deep fear for Drake arose like a physical ache in his heart. Drake was the best friend he had, probably the best he would ever have. But even as he thought about it he knew that his hopes for Drake had always been uncritical. He had refused to look squarely at a single fault in him. Drake carried the signal of terrible dangers to himself written clearly in his face. The ache inside of Parris hardened to actual pain. That overhandsome face of Drake's was not a thinking face.

The chances of terrible frustration lay deep in Drake's characters—chances, even, or disaster.

Just a few days earlier, at the conclusion of one of their long and fruitless discussions, Drake had said: "Things are going to be different from now on." Yes. Things were going to be different. Everything was moving. Everything was getting under way.

He and Drake were no longer spectators. He groaned a little disconsolately under his breath. Already the days just passed seemed so happy, and spacious, and free. Restraint was falling across his way. It seemed to be coming from every direction. And compulsion.

Struggle. He had heard that word a thousand times. He saw it and recognized it. But he had never realized that he would have to take a part in it.

Parris worked hard. He read day and night, and for the first time prepared digests for his reading for Dr. Tower.

There was a conspiracy of silence among Madame's older friends. Most of them knew of Parris' almost fanatical devotion to his grandmother. They looked at him a little pityingly, but said nothing. Even Drake seldom asked about Madame, but he knew. Sometimes he was uneasy and several times was near to telling Parris. He feared for Parris if Madame's death should some suddenly and unexpectedly.

Anna looked with wide, dry, wondering eyes at the seemingly unbreakable old woman, so slight and thin now she scarcely dented the heaped-up pillows. Madame insisted each day on having her hair done high on her head and fastened with the tall silver comb. For a few moments she smiled and spoke casually to Parris. Then she gave over to the interminable hours of incredible horror—one minute at a time until tomorrow.

During the next two weeks, Dr. Gordon came every day. It was no longer possible to put Parris off with childish answers.

He was eating breakfast absently and gloomily. Anna came downstairs. He looked up quickly. "She is terribly ill, isn't she, now?"

"Very ill, yes. But the weather will be cooler soon—it is usually better the last two weeks of August, you know."

Parris went quietly upstairs and into his grandmother's room. She lay on her side, asleep. He could not see her face, but her shoulder showed sharp and thin under the sheet. He went out again and stood for a moment in Madame's little dressing room. The table was covered with medicines. A hypodermic case was lying open: the needle and piston evidently freshly dried had not been replaced. He picked up the tube of white tablets and read the label.

Just then Anna returned. He pointed at the hypodermic case. Anna blanched a little.

"How long has—has this been necessary, Anna?" His voice shook slightly.

"For several weeks, Parris."

He waited as if he could not say the next word. He picked up the shining hypodermic needle and laid it down again.

"Cancer?" He was surprised that he could say it.

Anna answered in the same tone of voice. "Yes, Parris."

"Why wasn't I told? Why have I been kept out of this—like a child?"

"Madame wished it, Parris. She wanted you to finish your work without worry. She insisted, Parris; she made me promise."

"Yes, yes. I guess so. So that's it! But why did she make plans for me to go to Europe in September? Didn't she — doesn't she know?"

"Yes, of course she knows. She—she thought she would live through September."

The last tinge of color left his face. Anna moved instinctively nearer.

"And—she won't. Is that what you mean?"

"It is impossible that she should live more than a few days. I had made up my mind after Dr. Gordon's visit yesterday to tell you."

"A—few—days? Only a—a few days?"

"Yes, Parris."

He turned and left the room without speaking. Anna heard the door of his room close softly. She shook her head. Then she took a long breath and released it jerkily.

* * *

"Parris!" Cassie's voice over the telephone sounded hurried and anxious. "Listen, Parris. I've got to see you."

"Oh, I can't now, Cassie—".

"Parris, I wouldn't call you if it wasn't important!"

"All right. Nine o'clock at the corner of Aberdeen campus." Of course she couldn't understand what was happening to him just now. He'd have to tell her.

But Cassie had come to tell him.

"I don't think they're treating you right, Parris, and I've got to tell you."

"Cassie, I don't know what you're talking about. Who? What?"

"You know — well — you love your grandmother terribly much, don't you?"

"She's all my world, Cassie."

"Everybody's been trying to keep you from knowing how sick she is."

Parris did not reply. Cassie's words struck through him. It had seemed this afternoon a sort of secret that only Anna knew. But everybody knew!

"They should have told you long ago."

Still he did not answer.

"Parris," she took hold of his arms and shook him slightly. "Parris, your grandmother is dying, and they don't tell you!"

"Who told you?" He asked the question roughly.

"Papa."

"Oh, I see."

"He talked to Dr. Gordon, I guess. You know you're the only person I ever saw Papa be interested in. Your grandmother is dying of cancer. I know how you feel about her—and Parris, darling, I was afraid of what the sudden shock might do to you. I guess it's been just as much of a shock the way I've told you . . ."

"No, it's all right, Cassie. I knew it."

"Did you?"

"Just today. Anna told me. This afternoon."

"Oh."

They sat in silence for a long while, watching the fireflies, and then talked in gentle voices of other things.

"I'll have no one when you leave, Parris," Cassie whispered.

They walked soberly down the long avenue.

"You're not like anybody else, Parris. Do you know that?"

"I don't know. How, Cassie?"

"Of course, I don't know anybody. Ever since I can remember I've just lived in our house and yard. I don't ever think much about the time I went to school. I just know people in books, and from seeing them pass on the street. But—I just know you're altogether different. Even Papa says you are."

"Does he? I've wondered what he does think about me. I like him an awful lot, Cassie. He's taught me everything."

"I wouldn't want you to be different. When I think about you, you seem kind of mysterious, almost. Just kind of enigmatic. Papa talks about you sometimes—not often. He doesn't talk to me very often about anything except books."

"What does he really say about me, Cassie?"

"Well, he said one day that you were—now, let me see, I want to get it right. He said you were a very rare personality."

"Oh, gee! That sounds so sort of grand and important, doesn't it?"

"And he said something else, too. He said: 'a dark nature'."

"What do you suppose he meant by that?"

"I don't know. He said you were going to be a great doctor someday."

Parris stopped and held her by the arms. "Listen, Cassie: I want to be a good doctor—a great one if I can. When I come back—maybe, somehow the time'll pass quickly—when I come back will you marry me?"

HERE'S MY NEW RECIPE FOR MORE HEALTHFUL MEALS...
Health-building Vegetables
Put vegetables in pan on top of Westinghouse Range. Add ¼ cup, or less, of water. Cover and start cooking quickly with fast "High" heat of Corox unit; then steam deliciously tender on economical "Simmer" heat. Needless vitamin loss is prevented; healthful minerals are not dissolved and poured away with cooking water which may be "as rich a source of ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) as tomato juice." (From "Food and Life," U.S. Dept. Agr.)
Nutritious Meats
Roast choice cuts in uncovered pans in Westinghouse True-Temp Oven. Add no water; do not baste—there is no parching draft to dry out nourishing, natural juices. Even, Balanced Heat—automatically maintained—turns out moist, tender meats browned to a "T". Place cheaper cuts in Roomy Cooker. Add water. Slow cooking retains nutritive values, brings out rich flavors, makes them deliciously tender.

It's Simple and Easy With a New

Westinghouse Electric Range

VITAMIZED COOKING is based upon simple, sensible cooking principles. It is easy with a Westinghouse because this range provides the fast, even, accurately-controlled electric heat needed for this scientific, modern cooking method. And because many advanced features make models like the "Commander" almost completely automatic, thus saving your time and lightening your work.

You owe it to your family—and yourself—to find out about VITAMIZED COOKING. Come in—let us explain its benefits and show you how easy it is. Ask for our free booklet about VITAMIZED COOKING—no obligation!

U.S. ARMY HEAD IN LONDON, NEW ATTACK HINTED

Allies Expected to Move on Continent as Axis Strikes In Africa, Crimea.

vance forces had been pushed back in the new surge of fighting.

Egypt—Axis warplanes again pounded Britain's great naval base at Alexandria this morning, following up yesterday's attack in which 52 persons were killed and 80 wounded in the heaviest raid of the year.

Malta—Massed German bombers gave the British island stronghold its worst attack of the war yesterday and touched off the 2,000th alarm at the bomb-scarred Mediterranean base since June, 1940. Four Nazi planes were reported destroyed and three others damaged.

Crimea — Soviet dispatches said the Germans launched a heavy attack against Russian positions today, striking with 100 tanks, but were thrown back after several hours of fighting.

Other Soviet forces were credited with capturing a fortified german-held point on the Ukraine mainland front.

Improvement of road conditions in the south—The area in which Adolf Hitler is expected to make his supreme bid for caucasus oil—was indicated in reports of the combat. Footing may already have firmed sufficiently after the spring thaws for the opening of large-scale operations.

The Russians said the Germans lost 32 tanks and hundreds of dead under the blasting of Red army shells on the Crimean battlefield. Seven tanks were reported captured at the southwestern front village, from which the radio declared "the Germans retreated in disorder."

Nine-day totals of aerial warfare, as listed by the Soviet information bureau, stood through Monday at 494 German planes destroyed against 103 Russian aircraft lost.

Squadrons of RAF planes roared across the English channel early today ,and vapor trails laced the sky off the French coast between Cap Gris Nez and Calais, indicating dog fights between them and German aircraft.

In the battle of the Atlantic, the German high command reported that Nazi U-boats had sunk 16 Allied merchant ships totalling 104,00 tons in recent attacks on American and British supply lines. Thirteen were listed as sunk off the American coast, the remainder off Africa.

Official German quarters also asserted that six out of 10 British-chartered Norwegian ships which attempted to break out of the Swedish port of Gotenborg had been sunk by German naval and air forces Two others were said to have fled back to Swedish territorial waters

Two of the 10 apparently eluded the German blockade and reached Britain.

Calls Marshal Visit To London 'Normal'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The White House said today that General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Harry L. Hopkins, who has several war jobs including that of chairman of the munitions assignment board, had gone to London on a "perfectly normal wartime mission." Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, made that single explanation and would not elaborate.

The war department likewise withheld comment for the present.

sert salad that combined both fruit and vegetables.

The food lecturer demonstrated her instructions on cooking peas with as little water as possible by placing them in a pan containing only three tablespoons of water. She brought the peas to the steam stage for five minutes and then let them simmer for the next 20 minutes.

Mrs. Lautz believes that homemakers would serve more salads if they had a good French dressing always ready in the refrigerator and she gave the audience a dressing that could be made one day and used the next.

A firm advocate of the use of left-over food Mrs. Lautz demonstrated the making of Red Flannel hash which has as its basis one can of corned beef. "To this can be added almost any vegetable that you have on hand," said the expert, mentioning cooked potatoes, carrots, corn, peas and beets.

Refrigerator rolls that will be baked at the Friday morning session were started today and the program also included fried chicken, egg biscuits that can easily be converted into shortcake for strawberries, russet chocolate cake and caramel dumplings, a simple dessert that can be cooked on top of the range.

Throughout the demonstration Mrs. Lautz urged the expansion of the present home nutrition program and explained all the modern devices that make it possible for women to work more satisfactorily in their own kitchens. The model kitchen Mrs. Lautz is using on the stage was supplied through the co-operation of Mansfield merchants.

Leads In 'Hillbilly Wedding'

With advance ticket sales indicating a full house, a home talent production, "A Hillbilly Wedding," sponsored by the officers of Roseland Grange, will be presented at 8 p m. today and tomorrow at Madison high school. Shown above are Ollie LaRue (left) who will take the part of the groom, and Verne Kyle who is cast as the bride. The show, directed by Miss Madge Paydon of Davenport, Ia., includes an all-male cast of more than 100 persons. Tickets are still available.

funds are set up to pay 1942 bills and it will continue to be my policy to use them only for 1942 bills unless council directs otherwise."

Kelley told Kyle he thought it was "unfair to go off half-cocked" on the matter.

Kyle apologized for his statements, saying that he had been informed of the case by the municipal court.

Council finally approved payment of the bills after City Solicitor L. K. Wagner told it that it did not have any legal obligation to pay them but had "the right and privilege" to do so "if it saw fit."

24-INCH SKIRT LENGTH TABOOED

But New Order By War Board Says They Won't Be Any Longer Either.

nitely to be preferred over the hem 17 inches from the ground.

News-Journal staff members tried to learn how Mansfielders felt about the matter, but they found that nobody wanted to speak for publication. Most of the girls interviewed weren't disturbed about the prospect of skirts 24 inches from the ground, provided everyone else would be wearing 'em that way. One expressed the hope they'd switch to shorts instead of short skirts. Several pointed out that short skirts would be tough for gals with not-so-shapely knees.

The menfolks, generally speaking, liked the idea. (After all, we can make a good many sacrifices, can't we, in order to conserve material for the war effort?)

Well, it was nice to think about for a while, but the WPB order today spiked all that. The order designed to eliminate flipperies and frills from present dress styles and halt radical changes in future women's clothes, is expected to save millions of yards of cloth annually.

Here are some of the major things that won't appear in the future on women's clothes: French cuffs on sleeves, balloon and leg-of-mutton sleeves; patch pockets of wool, swirly, pleated skirts of great circumference; long, full daytime skirts and sleeves; wide belts. Also eleminated will be suit and coat ensembles of more than two pieces at one unit price.

The order will not affect clothes for this spring and summer, most of which are already made. The restrictions on woolen garments become effective tomorrow in time to apply to next fall and winter clothes. Restrictions on cotton, rayon and other materials become effective June 19 when this summer's clothes will be completed. Resturctions on retailers' stocks go into effect August 17.

There were some fields of the feminine wardrobe that even the WPB did not "dare" enter—hats, for example, and lingerie. Neither does the order apply to infants' and toddlers' apparel (sizes from one to four), bridal gowns, maternity dresses, clothing for persons of abnormal size, burial gowns, or robes and vestments required by the rules of religious orders or sects.

Well, now that we know that the extra-short skirts are out, let's all turn back and look at the pictures just to remind us of what might have been. (Or were you looking at 'em all this time?)

ENGINEER QUITS

WILLARD—U. C. Leibengood of Norwalk has resigned as city engineer at Willard. Council, Monday night, retained the Judson Engineering company of Sandusky to take over Leibengood's duties.

The pay ordinance for Municipal park was also approved at the meeting. It grants the park board authority to pay the supervisor $100 per month and the landscape architect 85 cents per hour. The board may also hire life guards, attendants and laborers.

Council approved ordering 200 tons of stone for improving streets.

Files 6th Action Seeking Payment Of Overtime Pay

The sixth suit in a series of court actions to collect overtime pay for employes of Richland county business and industrial firms had been filed today in common pleas court by Attorney H. M. Rust, Mansfield, who has brought all the actions.

Donald Bookwalter, doing business as the Universal Parts company, is defendant in the latest suit which was filed in behalf of Roy Huffman and 11 other employes and former employes of the firm.

Rust asks a total of $3,600 in the action, including $1,200 in fees for himself. He seeks $32 50 in overtime pay alleged due Hoffman. The petition states that definite figures regarding the hours of overtime worked by the other 11 plaintiffs were unavailable.

Other workers listed in the petition were Joseph Baffath, M. O. Farst, W. A. Ayers, Arban Hollar, Chester Huffman, S. B. Blackledge, Richard M. Nicholas, Frank Hughett, Alfred Lee Lynch, W. H Schrack and R. M. Snyder.

Fees sought by Rust in the six suits he has filed amount to well over $100.000 .

REPUBLICANS BLOCK VOTE ON NEW CITY BOARD

Exercise Majority Power To Sidetrack Plan to Create Investment Group.

toward the matter did not develop clearly in the brief discussion during the session, but it was pointed out that the proposed investment board would have three Democratic city officials on it with Mayor W. J. Locke as the only Republican.

State law makes provision for such a board and stipulates that city administrative officers serve on it. In Mansfield, members would include Mayor Locke, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, City Solicitor L. K. Wagner and City Treasurer Earle K. Troll. The latter three are Democrats.

The board would have final authority on investing city funds. However, the board would have to cash securities at the direction of city council whenever that body decided upon such action to be made cash available.

Council's finance committee chairman, Russell D. Porch, Republican, requested that the legislation be referred to his committee.

Late last week, Mayor Locke received a telegram from the federal treasury department requesting that cities invest idle money in treasury certificates as a means of aiding the nation's war effort.

Another measure introduced by Councilman Miller for emergency passage and which was blocked by the Republican majority was a plan providing for the creation of a sewage plant rehabilitation fund.

Miller asked that $6,000 be set aside annually from all collections for sewer rentals over $42,000 to be used to renovate the sewage plant about 15 years from now. The ordinance stated that the special fund should not be allowed to exceed $100,000.

"The people of Mansfield passed a $200,000 bond issue in 1935 for the construction of the sewage plant," said Miller, "and I don't believe it would be fair to charge them sewer rentals and to then ask them to finance another bond issue when the plant needs rehabilitation."

Porch said he favored the plan but that he was considering the adaption of it in other departments of the city and said he wanted the finance committee to consider it. His Republican supporters overruled Miller's attempts to have a vote on the matter.

In other matters brought up last night council designated the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank as the legal auditor of the city's receipts from parking meters.

Vacated Rocky Fork street which runs between the Tappan Stove company property and the Pensylvania railroad.

Authorized the borrowing of $8,000 to cover the cost of improving East First street from Bushnell street to the Pennsylvania railroad.

Authorized the grading, paving and construction of gutters on East Raleigh avenue.

Ordered the sale of old equipment at the North Main street pumping station to the highest bidder.

Appropriated $2,500 for the purchase of a street roller.

Received a protest from East First street and Hedges street residents concerning truck traffic

Received a petition from residents near Cleveland and Jeanette avenues asking that an alley running between the streets be opened.

Authorized the Barnes Manufacturing company to construct a water test tank on Longview avenue for testing mobile pump units being produced for use by the federal government for fire fighting purposes.

Gave a first reading to an ordinance allowing the service-safety director to use previously appropriated funds for the improvement of the airport to hire labor for the work. The ordinance in effect at present stipulates that the director contract for the work.

Authorized the service-safety director to cooperate with the state highway department in the planning of improvements to Park avenue east and the streets around the square and also the improvement of East First and Hedges streets as part of a truck by-pass

DEFENDERS OF BATAN FORCED TO FALL BACK

Retreat Before Onslaught of Jap Superiority in Men and Armament.

facilities and starting three large fires, the communique reported.

The war department communique said:

"PHILIPPINE THEATER—In order to rectify the line in Batan which had been penetrated by the Japanese, our troops withdrew during the night of April 7 to a previously prepared defense position.

"INDIA — Confirming previous press dispatches, Maj Gen. Lewis H. Brereton reports in a delayed message that seven American army heavy bombers of the flying fortress type carried out a successful air raid on the harbor of Rangoon on April 3.

"Several tons of bombs were dropped, damaging docks and port facilities. Three large fires were started. Light anti-aircraft fire from Japanese batteries was encountered but none of our planes was hit

"There is nothing to report from other areas."

Cut off from reinforcements and supplies for nearly 18 weeks, the casualty-riddled ranks of the valiant American-Filipino army nevertheless exacted a terrific toll from the Nipponese who slashed ahead regardless of losses in what appeared to be the decisive chapter of the Batan conflict.

Japanese determination to crush finally all resistance in the Manila area was best exemplified by the ruthless double bombing of a plainly-marked American field hospital filled with helpless soldiers who had been wounded in the fierce fighting that has raged for more than two weeks.

The enemy's callous disregard of anything resembling civilized warfare was reported in the war department's latest comunique which bluntly labeled both bombings "intentional."

"The enemy again bombed one of our field hospitals, inflicting heavy casualties among wounded soldiers undergoing treatment," the comunique said. The attack was carried out this morning by three flights of heavy bombers.

"This same hospital was bombed only a few days ago, after which the Japanese high command broadcast an apology. Today's attack on this plainly marked hospital, following so closely the first attack, tends to prove that both raids were intentional."

American forces occupying rear battle positions have had no chance to rest recently because the enemy's control of the skies has enabled him to bomb and machane gun virtually every square foot of the embattled peninsula.

While powerful Corregidor and its three supporting forts guarding Manila bay may be able to hold out for some time, military analysts explained that these positions, too, would suffer if the enemy took Batan and used its jungle to screen heavy artillery batteries.

Enemy siege guns for weeks have been shelling the forts from the Cavite shore but distance has been an advantage in these duels to Corregidor's heavily-imbedded big guns. Jap guns on the tip of Batan would have protective jungle covering and shorter firing range.

Military experts long have anticipated that Wainwright might make a final stand on Corregidor to frustrate still longer Japan's conquest of the Philippines, but it is considered doubtful that the entire American-Filipino force could be evacuated to the island in the event that Batan became untenable.

Barring unexpected developments, the battle of Batan may end in a comparatively short time, but it already has served its purpose by providing the United Nations with time to prepare in other theaters of war.

MacArthur In Touch With Philippines

MELBOURNE — (INS) — General Douglas MacArthur is in "constant touch" with American and Filipino troops on the Batan peninsula and is receiving reports direct from Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, a spokesman revealed today.

"The Philippines still form a very real part of Gen. MacArthur's command," he said.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1942.

A profit is not without honor except when it is larger than it should be.

Frankness note: Sign over Memphis pinball machine says, "In case of an air raid, dive under this machine. It hasn't been hit yet."

The Hindus measure time in "crores." A crore is ten million years—which gives an idea of why the Hindus can't see why it makes any difference whether a thing is decided on Tuesday or on Thursday.

Ban Excessive War Profits

ONE point of agreement, among all except a few people who are animated by purely selfish motives, is that everybody should share in the sacrifices of war and that war profiteering is one of the basest offenses that can be committed by any individual or group.

This applies with equal force to unreasonable financial gains of every kind, whether in the form of profits in business or industry, salaries, wages—or whatever way the promotion of self-interest may appear.

The big problem, however, is to develop and put in operation a plan of control which will fairly meet the needs of the entire United States, and this is the problem with which congress is now coping.

Various methods of price control and profit limitation have been proposed but none has yet seemed to reach the scope and practicability that will eventually be required if this turns out to be a long war and the disaster of runaway inflation is to be avoided.

Thus far the effort has been to establish "control" without placing restraint on wage increases beyond reasonable bounds, and this will be obviously impossible because of the high percentage of total cost that is represented in the "labor" item.

The most recent proposal is to outlaw union initiation fees in war industries, probably as a result of revelations of the extent to which racketeering has entered into what had long been regarded as a legitimate source of organization funds.

In this, as in many other phases of human relationships, it appears that what is lacking is a higher degree of dependable honesty and capability in leadership—and also a better understanding of the vital importance of WINNING THE WAR.

Defensive War Would Be Lost

THE WAR is now at a stage where it can be either won or lost by the United Nations. North Africa will be the scene of crucial fighting this year. Japan's next strong offensive will be in the direction of India, in an effort to effect physical junction with Nazi forces aiming toward the Persian Gulf. Russia is gaining strength that will likely be sufficient to meet Hitler's spring thrust. Japanese successes in the Far East have changed Nippon from a "have not" to a "have" nation and greatly increased the difficulties of the Allies in that area.

Such a talk as was given by Spencer D. Irwin, of Cleveland, former Mansfield newspaper man, at a civic club meeting here yesterday, served to give a clear-cut picture of the widely scattered war areas and of the elements entering into various phases of the conflict.

A talk of this kind, by a keen student of international affairs, also gives an idea of the relative unimportance of single incidents associated with present war efforts and emphasizes the need of continued preparation for offensive warfare in Europe before victory can be attained.

Bringing together the many phases of this world-encircling war, the analysis given by Mr. Irwin does not encourage the optimistic belief that this year, or next, will bring victory to the United Nations. Much will depend on this year's fighting in determining whether the war can be ended by 1945.

What seems quite clear is that the all-out production of war materials by the United States, and steadily increasing armed forces in this country, will be a dominant need for a long time to come—and that nothing should be permitted to stand in the way of following through such national policies . . . for self-preservation, if for no less selfish motive.

Playing the Enemy's Game

CONTINUED tolerance of those who use the liberties and privileges of this country to spread propaganda, disunity and sedition is a foolhardy policy in time of war.

The government has made a beginning toward cracking down on this abuse in the arrest of Dudley Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirts and former editor of the Galilean, a weekly pro-Axis sheet which recently suspended publication.

But as long as such organs as Social Justice continue undisturbed, it is only a beginning. There are numerous publications using the cloak of free press and free speech to spread Axis doctrines in this country, but Social Justice is the best known in this area.

In denouncing the abuse of American freedom of the press by Social Justice, the Cleveland Plain Dealer puts it this way:

> "Whoever endeavors by misinformation, misrepresentation and propaganda to undermine the confidence of the people in free government at home and to thwart the war effort of the nation is playing the enemy's game. The motive is of no importance.
> "The readers of Social Justice and similar dispensors of doubtful doctrine are, week by week, led to believe that England, not Germany and Japan, is the enemy. The Jews are singled out in the best Goebbels manner as the originators of this war. Hitler is innocent of any aggression. These lying implications and the weasel words in which they are cloaked, often by implication, lead their readers to look upon their own country and its citizens who are carrying on the war as the real foes of mankind . . .
> "What the American people demand today in the suppression of these scurrilous publications is not the termination of free speech. They do ask, however, for the suppression of the abuse of free speech. This is no longer an academic matter."

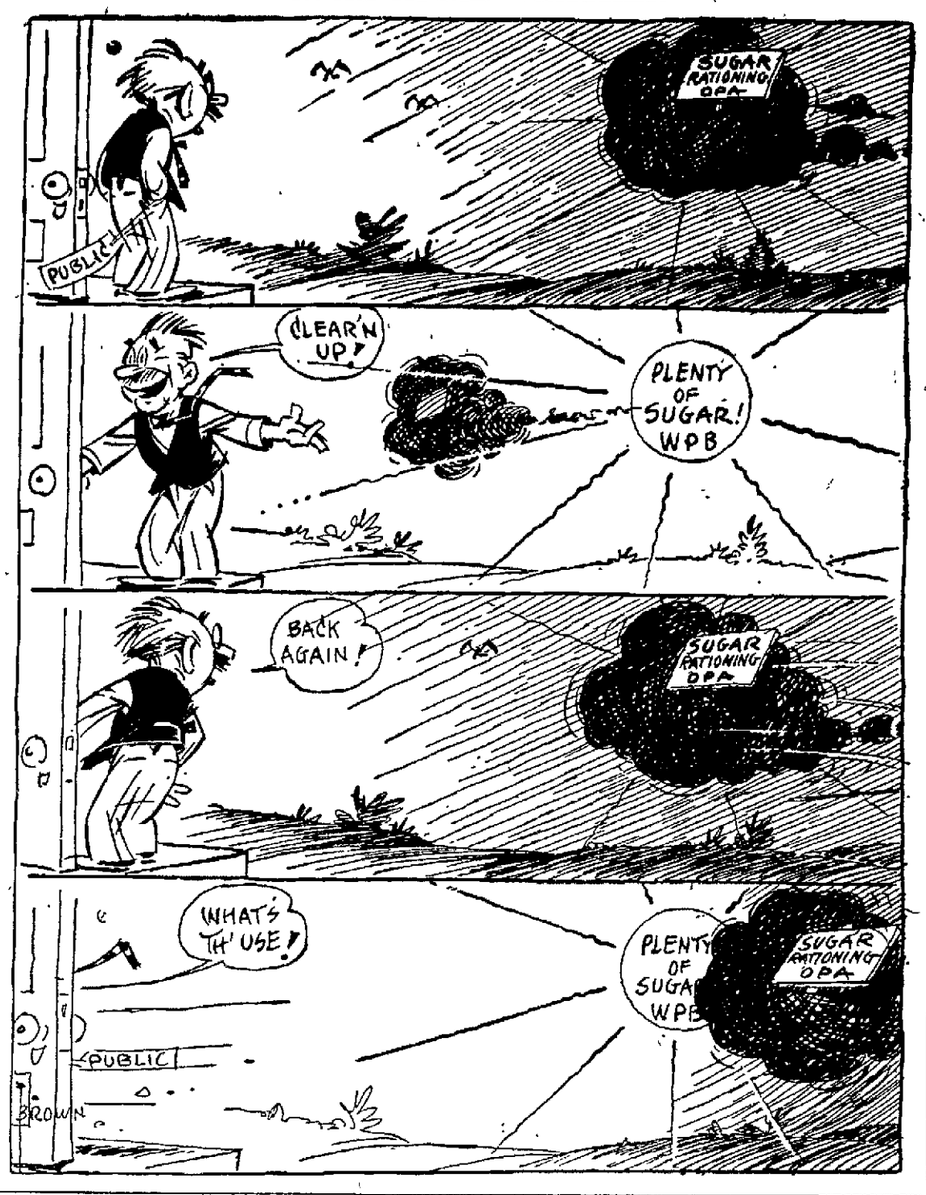
Without in any way encroaching on the rights of loyal Americans to express opinions and to criticize administration policies, when they deem it advisable, it seems quite obvious that peace-time tolerance of un-American and subversive activities and utterances cannot be safely extended to the exigencies of war.

Now, it is being gradually revealed, there's to be a shortage of "gadgets"—and if there's anything that it's hard to get along without it's a gadget.

It is now being recalled that members of the House of David were long ago getting ready for a razor blade shortage.

What ever became of that "new leisure"?

REAL APRIL WEATHER



Overlapping Agencies Expensive

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

SENATOR HARRY F. BYRD, chairman of congress' JEC, believes Uncle Sam has a superfluity of alphabetical agencies. For example, he's in favor of merging the OGR, the OCI and the OFF into one single OGRCIFF, an economy of two O's and a couple of sizable staffs of workers on the federal payroll.

It'll be a saving, however, from which a new staff for a WAAC will have to be subtracted if congress creates the WAAC, as is being urged.

To make a little sense out of this gibberish.

Senator Byrd's JEC is a congressional Joint Economy commitee. The OGR is the Office of Government Reports, run by Lowell Mellett, now under fire, not only on the ground that his outfit's superfluous, but on the further ground that he's putting up a half million dollar building in Washington in which to house its superfluity. The OCI is the Office of Co-ordinator of Information, headed by Colonel "Wild Bill" Donavan, hero of World war No. 1. The OFF is Archibald MacLeish's Office of Facts and Figures—wartime facts and figures, of course.

Now, these offices' various respective names do, indeed, suggest a certain overlapping of their functions, and maybe Senator Byrd will succeed in his plan to combine them under a single heading.

Women Another Problem.

He probably won't find the proposed WAAC's backers so easy to deal with, though.

WAAC will stand, provided the institution's established, for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. The women manifestly want it, and it's no joke to tell that sex that what it wants is something it can't have.

The scheme's to enroll all women, from 18 to 65, with a view to to their possibilities as wartime workers, mostly civilian, but perhaps occasionally semi-military. You might not suppose they would fancy the notion of being compulsorily registered, giving ages and all such details, and maybe some of them don't, but a formidable element of them do.

No doubt it is largely pure patriotism, but I surmise that they are ambitious, too, to acquire a designation ending in "ee." A boy, seclected for army service, becomes a "selectee." Actually inducted into it, he becomes an "inductee." But a gal can't refer to herself as a "housewifee," or even if she's pretty well up toward the fighting front, as say a "nursee." I'm convinced that she considers it an unjust discrimination against her.

Well, suppose she's enrolled. Thereupon she's an "enrollee." Just the thing.

A women's uniform is to be provided likewise. It's to be highly becoming and it won't cost a cent. That is, it'll cost the taxpayer a good bit, but its wearer will get it free.

Finally, an enrollee, once inducted, will be entitled to the same pay as a boy inductee.

Unfortunately, there's one kink in the program.

The congressional notion has been to give WAAC officers (ladies, of course) ratings and salaries up to and including the rank of major, in the classification of mere men.

Generals, Maybe?

The gals, thus far heard from, don't see why they shouldn't be generals if they get that high in the scale.

The war department seems not disinclined to agree with them.

The other day it made a colonel of Julia Flikke, head of the Army Nurse corps, and a colonel is a notch ahead of a major, with a stipend of $3,000 annually, and maintenance, which is fairly liberally allowed for.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, April 8, 1922.

Auto salesmen reported business good—one dealer had sold 133 cars since first of year.

George Brown, 39 Clairmont avenue, was pensioned by National Biscuit company after 48 years employment.

Ira King moved blacksmith and wagon repair shop into new building on North Franklin avenue.

Miss Mildred Ports and Fred L. Ohler were married by Rev. Henry C. Roehner.

Arthur M. Orwig, 87, died at his home, 72 Johns avenue.

Henry Meily returned home after a trip to Havana, Cuba, and a several weeks stay in Florida.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, April 8, 1937.

Ralph B. Chapman returned from Columbus where he attended the second annual meeting of the Ohio Area Y. M. C. A. council.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Malone, 164 Wolfe avenue.

Firth Griffith was elected dictator of the Mansfield lodge of Moose.

Russell Murphy, Mansfield high school football coach, was attending the sixth annual Purdue football clinic.

Ney Remy was knocked down by an automobile as he was walking across Park avenue east.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Mary Pickford was born this day in 1893 in Toronto, Canada. Miss Pickford's first stage appearance was at the age of five. At eight she went on tour. Years later, motion pictures endeared her to the public and she became known as "America's Sweetheart."

Man About Manhattan

Billy of Broadway

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — The grass isn't growing in the streets of New York yet, but if you care to open one eye around two o'clock in the afternoon you can see a goat taking the air along Broadway.

This is Pat, the goat that hauls the crippled Porgy around Catfish Row in "Porgy and Bess," and, like Mary's little lamb, wherever Pat goes, Dan DuBue is sure to go too.

Dan DuBue is the Maplewood, N. J., blacksmith who owns Pat, and it is doubtful if Dan would ever have got to Broadway without of Pat's peculiar histrionic abilities.

FOR Pat is a bread-winner in more than one sense. He earns $40 a week. His contract calls for a room backstage for himself and "manager," with light and heat thrown in. His presence has cut down on the cleaning bills, for instead of tossing their cigaret butts into the ashtrays, the actors now hand them to Pat, who thinks they are a tasty morsel and gulps them down ravenously. As a matter of fact, Pat's diet sounds like what the condemned man ate when the newspapers report, "The prisoner ate a hearty dinner." . . . Pat's daily menu consists of barley, cornmeal, oats, carrots, candy and cigarets.

Pat's duties in the evenings and for the matinee performances consist of two appearances. He comes on stage in the first scene hauling the crippled Porgy with him, and at the last he is ready to take Porgy all the way to "Noo Yawk," which is somewhere beyond the Customs House, Porgy thinks.

The rest of the time is his own.

Not only does Pat own his eminence to the theater . . . He has been on radio broadcasts, and if you know what Bock Beer is you are familiar with his picture. The brewers selected Pat as the likeliest looking animal to feature their advertisements. Pat is gray with a sardonic smile and a sassy crop of chin-whiskers.

WHEN he appeared on the radio program "The Go-Getters," Dan DuBue was awarded a prize, apparently for contributing the strangest thing to the program, which was a sort of left-handed treasure hunt.

Guess what the prize was!

A little black Nanny goat.

"Just the thing," cried old Dan, the blacksmith, "I'll give her to Pat for a wife."

It breaks my heart to tell you that romance flew out the window as soon as the little black Nanny came through the door. She looked at Pat and her lip curled. Pat looked at her and loathed her. To save the furniture and to keep them from maiming each other, Nanny was led away, and Pat, they say, to this day has maintained his bachelor status, which marks him as something of a blockhead, if you ask me.

Free Army Mail.

The soldiers and the public alike will approve the speed with which the government has moved to inaugurate free mail service for the men in the armed forces both here and overseas. Postmasters have been instructed to forward letters—other than air mail—without charge to the uniformed sender. All the soldier, sailor or marine needs to do is to write "Free" in the upper right-hand corner of his envelope, put his full name, rank and service branch in the left-hand corner and post it anywhere in the place provided.

The commendable idea back of this step is to make it easy for the boys to write home. A 3c stamp isn't much of an expense in these days of freely-circulating money, but to the youngster on $21 a month or a little more, it is an expense that counts up if he has a lot of correspondents or if he writes home as often as his family wants him to.—Columbus Dispatch.

Witness Against 40-Hour Week Proves Boomerang When Grilled

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Deadliest testimony against the Vinson-Smith bill to repeal the 40-hour week did not come from WPB Chief Donald Nelson or labor leaders Bill Green and Phil Murray, though the trio got the headlines. It came from one of the most militant advocates of the measure.

He was Mervyn K. Hart, head of the New York State Economic council, who appeared as a witness for the legislation. But his testimony quickly turned into a stinging boomerang when Representative Mike Bradley of Pennsylvania started grilling Hart about his background.

Among other things, Hart admitted:

(1) That he had been an active foe of the Lend-Lease program; (2) that he had been a member of the America First Committee; (3) that he attended the anti-Roosevelt rally in Madison Square Garden, at which Fritz Kuhn and other Bundists were present; and (4) that his organization advocated disfranchising relief workers.

While admitting that his organization had "participated" in the New York meeting, Hart vehemently denied any relations with the Bund.

"Fritz Kuhn wasn't invited," Hart declared. "He just happened to show up."

"Has your organization ever advocated disfranchising WPA workers and other people on relief?" asked Bradley.

"Yes, we believed that such people shouldn't have the right to vote."

There were two very red faces in the committee room when Hart concluded his damaging testimony. They belonged to Representatives Carl Vinson of Georgia and Howard Smith of Virginia, co-authors of the repeal bill.

Boomerang.

FEDERAL Housing Commissioner Abner Ferguson prepared a speech for delivery before the American Bankers association in New York City and in accordance with regulations submitted the manuscript to the Office of Facts and Figures for approval.

The speech came back with a note from Captain Robert Kintner noting an "inaccuracy" on page six.

In the most formal and restrained language, Ferguson replied to this effect: "Dear Captain Kintner: I have taken note of the 'inaccuracy' contained in my prepared address, but I desire respectfully to call your attention to the fact that this passage was taken from the "Reports to the Nation,' prepared and issued by the Office of Facts and Figures."

Friendly Enemies.

JOSEPH FANELLI is a brilliant young lawyer who is chairman of the board of immigration appeals. His mother, Mrs. Mary Fanelli, came to the United States from Bari, Italy, in 1905. She has raised eight children in America, but has never become a citizen herself, because she couldn't pass the educational tests.

But in the early days, she scrubbed floors in New York office buildings so that her children might be educated. Appreciating deeply the opportunities of America, she sent her boy Joe to Dartmouth, and then to Harvard law school.

His brilliance was recognized. Now he presides over immigration matters in the justice department.

Every year, Mrs. Fanelli comes to Washington to see Joe. She comes on his name day—Saint Joseph's day, March 19.

But this year she didn't come. Joe wondered what was wrong. Next day, however, she appeared, overjoyed to see him, but still upset about what had happened.

"Dat District Attorney," cried Mrs. Fanelli, 'he don' latta me come see my Joe! I tall heem my boy Joe eesa beeg man in Washington. But he don' lat me come. What'sa matter?"

The matter was that Mrs. Fanelli, 37 years a resident of the United States, and the mother of an important official in the justice department, was obliged to get a permit from the district attorney before she could leave the community.

Reason: She is an "enemy alien."

Note: The case of Mrs. Fanelli is typical of thousands of others along the Atlantic seaboard. These cases are causing the justice department and even the army to think twice about proposals to move "alien enemies" inland.

Military Information.

NO ANNOUNCEMENT has been made, but the senate and house military affairs committees have won their battle to be kept informed of the progress of the war effort.

During World War I, the two committees were kept advised of military developments abroad and war production at home at confidential sessions with Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, chief statistical officer of the war department. Ayres holds the same post in this war, and last year began a similar series of these meetings.

But they were abruptly ended after Pearl Harbor. Chairman Andrew J. May of the house committee complained to Secretary Stimson, and got the explanation that the war department wanted to avoid "leaks."

This drew such irate protests from both committees that Stimson has backed down and Ayres has been authorized to resume his reports on "the inside lowdown."

IF YOU have a son, relative or friend going into the army, give him a copy of "To the Colors," by Col. R. Ernest Dupuy, the army's ace author. Brief and readable, the book will give the young soldier a lot of helpful information about his new life. . . . Wage-Hour Administrator L. M. Walling has the dubious record of being the first to run afoul of the White House order that all speeches and statements by government executives must be submitted for approval. The young Rhode Island socialite, who owes his job to Secretary Perkins, made two speeches without first submitting them and has been sharply rebuked by the White House.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Over coffee and doughnuts in the Senate restaurant the other day, a group of Washington newsmen hashed over an amazing journalistic coincidence.

The eyes of Washington and perhaps the whole world that day were turned to New Delhi, India, where Sir Stafford Cripps, No. 2 man in the British war cabinet, was holding a two-hour session with a scrawny little man in a loin cloth, Mahatma Gandhi. On that session depended much, perhaps the future of India and the tide of the war for months or maybe years to come.

And in Ventura, Calif., James A. Mills, one of the Associated Press' greatest foreign correspondents, died.

These seemingly unrelated happenings had a very definite relationship for it was Jim Mills who years ago "discovered" Gandhi for the world outside of India.

ONE veteran correspondent recalled that the little man in the loin cloth was considered no more than a fanatical leader of one of India's many factions, when Mills met him, sensed the potential appeal to the Hindu masses in his philosophy and the power he was becoming in his land.

"Jim's dispatches years ago introduced Gandhi to the world," said this correspondent, and added, "and if I'm not mistaken Jim took the first news pictures of the Mahatma to be printed."

Certain it was that Jim was with Gandhi all through those months when the little leader in the fight for India's freedom was conducting his salt rebellion in 1930 and he went with him to that all-India round-table in London a year later. Certainly no single correspondent turned out more copy on the little man whose life is so bound up in India's destiny than Jim Mills.

On the day Gandhi was making his greatest decision, one that not only affected India, and the British empire, but the whole world, Jim Mills died.

IT WAS Morgan Beatty, the radio commentator, who said: "You know that clinches what undoubtedly will turn out to be Gandhi's greatest prophecy." And to the queries of "How so" he explained:

Mills was the last person to speak with Gandhi when the Indian leader entered Poona jail in 1932 and 17 months later when Gandhi was released, Mills was waiting alone for Gandhi's first words.

They were: "Why, Mr. Mills, if I should die and start to enter Heaven, I should expect to see you waiting to interview me at the gates."

A Farmer's Diary

A Dairy Farmer

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ONE OF our nearest neighbors will wonder why A Farmer's Diary, in 1942, should mention him...but because I believe you will recognize someone you know, someone you respect, and someone whom you believe to be a high type of middle-western American farmer, I give him to you.

He is a round-faced, genial, ruddy, square-built man whom you see everywhere you go, among hosts of friends. By that I mean he's at church, at lodge, at grange, at school board meeting, at chamber of commerce—and visiting along the street of our village. He owns one of the best farms on Honey Creek with a modern house and barn and a large herd of dairy cattle from which he delivers the daily output of milk to most of our village.

Every morning before five, if I chance to look, I see lights in his barnyard and know it is milking time.

He had a good hired man—a trustworthy, dependable fellow who had lived in his home for years. When this young man had an appendectomy and was unable to work, the farmer and his family cared for him in convalescence. Last week this hired man went to war. I haven't lived in the community so long — but I've "listened in." People say the dairyman is a good man to work for—I understand he reared another orphan boy and gave him a start in life. His own two children are girls—one of them now taking nurse's training in a big city hospital.

"What'll your father do for help this summer?" I asked the younger daughter, a buxom 15-year-old who often comes to our home.

"He says he'll farm it himself," was the quick reply. "He has a good tractor and he's going to plow at night. A neighbor's girl is working for us now—she'll help me deliver the milk this summer. She and I can do it fine. I don't believe it'll take us as long as it does dad. People visit with him more than they will with us... it's really fun to work. This war makes a difference, too."

"How does your sister like the hospital by now?"

"Very much. It's nicer since she completed six months work and can wear her cap."

He's a typical farmer, yes. His hired man has gone to war, his daughter to nurse's training; his wife helps with the cows; his young daughter drives the milk truck; he has hired a neighbor's daughter to help wherever she can upon his broad acres.

In the village, he stops at a neat white house with a bottle of milk and I hear him speak familiarly in a foreign tongue to a short, cheery old lady who resembles him so much that you know who she is before he calls her "Mutter." His mother—a remarkable woman, beloved in the village, who came to this country many years ago—we are glad to say—from Germany.

PROTEST PAVING IF TRUCKS ARE TO USE STREETS

East First, Hedges Property Owners Object to Plan For Improvements.

Forty-two property owners on East First and Hedges streets, part of the state truck by-pass of U. S. Route 42 which was battered to pieces this winter and spring by heavy truck cargoes, petitioned city council today, protesting against plans for the improvement of the streets for use as a truck by-pass.

The property owners stated that they opposed the resumption of truck traffic on their streets and that they objected to having assessments made against their property to have the street improved if it were to be used for trucks.

Early last month, Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff was forced to have the street closed to truck traffic after the pavement buckled and deep ruts appeared.

Since then, Director Wolff has conferred with Vance Grimes, Ashland divisional engineer of the state highway department, concerning the repair or improvement of not only the truck route but also Park avenue east and the streets around the square which are part of U. S. Route 42.

Under the terms of the proposition offered the city by the state highway department, the city would pay one-half the total estimated cost of $42,000, or about $21,000.

If the city accepts the proposition, it would pay for the intersections along the improvements but would assess property owners along the routes for the proportionate benefit their properties receive. The residents along the truck by-pass indicate in their petition that they do not favor assuming the cost of improving their streets if they are to be used for truck traffic.

The property owners may have an ally in Councilman George C. Kyle, who has stated that he believed that only the Park avenue east strip should be improved at present and that truck traffic should be returned to it for the duration of the war.

East First and Hedges street could be put in shape for regular automobile traffic, according to Kyle, but any major improvement could be put off until after the war.

Council is expected to pass an ordinance authorizing Director Wolff to co-operate with the state highway department in the planning of the improvements but it is expected to set a limit on the city's participation, somewhere around $21,000.

Harvard's Middle Name's Yale, His Last, Princeton

DOTHAN, Ala.—(INS)—Classification officer at the advanced flying school at Dothan, Ala., thought someone was trying to be funny when the next fellow in line said:

"Harvard Princeton reporting, sir."

Blushingly, the young man repeated for the benefit of the officer, explaining:

"That's my name, sir, Harvard Y. Princeton."

"And, I suppose you'll tell me the 'Y' stands for Yale," the officer said cynically.

It did!

Further investigation disclosed that Harvard Yale Princeton is not, as his name might indicate, a college alumnus, having never finished high school.

CITES CRUELTY, WINS DIVORCE

Wife of Defense Firm Official Tells of Hair Pulling.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — On the claim that her husband dragged her around a hotel room by the hair at a Jack & Heintz company party and on several occasions struck her, Mrs. Betty Jeanne Jack, 26, has been granted a divorce from Clarence L. Jack, purchasing supervisor of the company.

Mrs. Jack told Common Pleas Judge Harrison W. Ewing that Jack was extremely cruel to her. The divorce was not contested.

The Jack & Heintz company was recently investigated by the house naval affairs committee which charged the company was making excessive profits and paying huge bonuses to its employes.

PAPER, STYLE SHOW GIVEN FOR SOROSIS

Mrs. W. H. Gifford Presents Interesting Talk On "Romance of American Dress" at Women's Club.

"ROMANCE OF AMERICAN DRESS" was the title of a very enjoyable program presented by Mrs. W. H. Gifford for 25 members and 10 guests of the Mansfield Sorosis at the Women's Club Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Gifford presented a paper, illustrated by a style show, describing historical backgrounds and customs according to settlement of the United States.

At each period was discussed, the typical dress of the settlement was shown. Mrs. H. L. Creveling wore a gown representative of the Colonial settlement at Jamestown, Va. The Plymouth settlers' costume was illustrated by Mrs. Milo Hieber, who was dressed as a Pilgrim.

Mary Hieber wore a Dutch costume to show the attire of New York settlers. Quaker dress of Pennsylvania was modeled by Mrs. C. W. Barnes. The pioneer migrating movement to the West was depicted by Mrs. James Turner in a costume representing the pioneer mother. Dress of the first half of the 18th century was illustrated by Kathryn Beatty in a hoop skirt. Miss Helen Pecht was attired in a wedding gown of early 1900 and Mrs. Wilson Barnes and Mrs. O. G. Place modeled clothing of the same period.

Mrs. Eugene Linham typified the modern bride. The "Gay Nineties" era was represented by Mrs. LeRoy McGinty, who wore a silk velvet and ermine gown. Old and new types of sports wear were modeled by Mrs. Fred Troll and Mrs. W. J. Bishop. Sleeping apparel of different periods was shown by Mrs. Wilson Barnes and Patty Hieber.

With the presentation of each gown, appropriate songs were sung by Mrs. H. D. Bishop, whose piano accompaniment was played by Mrs. Louise Rahn. At the close the group sang "Auld Lang Snye" and "God Bless America," while little Jon McGinty held the American flag.

Favors of red carnations were given to the guests and members who participated in the program. Hostesses for the meeting were the Misses Sophie and Bertha Ruess. Mrs. S. D. Hoover had charge of the business session during which the present officers were re-elected to serve during the next club year. They are Mrs. Hoover, president; Mrs. Place, vice president; Mrs. George Ganyard, secretary; Mrs. W. W. Purdy, treasurer; and Mrs. John Angle, historian. Mrs. Place and Mrs. H. D. Bishop were named delegates to the State Federation meeting which will be held in Columbus soon.

Roll call was answered "in a lighter vein." Last meeting of the year will be the spring party to be given at the Women's club on April 21. Dessert will be served at 6:30 p. m. Members of the Mansfield Junior Sorosis club will be guests.

Guest Speaks at Guild Meeting Held at Church

Members of the World Wide Guild of the Park Avenue Baptist church held a covered-dish dinner at the church Tuesday evening. Twenty-three members of the Guild and sixteen members of the Women's Missionary society were in attendance. Mrs. Holly Conner was chairman for the meeting Miss Helen Hess, a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, Ill., was the guest speaker.

Luncheon was served at three long tables decorated with yellow roses and sweet peas and lighted tapers. Mrs. Robert Small led the devotions. The next regular meeting will be held May 5 at the home of Mrs. Joseph Hecht, West Third street. Associate hostesses will be Mrs. Wilbur Conn and Miss Elizabeth Hildum.

Degree Team Has Meeting, Enjoys Games

The home of Mrs. Edith Stickrod, 263 Park avenue east, was meeting place Monday for the Pocahontas degree team. Fourteen members were present. Following the business session, five hundred and bunco were played.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Martha Reichert and Mrs. Julia Grandstaff. Miss Cora Fisher was recipient of the club prize. Next meeting will be held on May 4. The place will be announced later.

Meeting of the Past Pocahontas association will be held this evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Hull, 112 Hedges street.

American Costumes Modeled

Some of the Mansfield Sorosis members and guests who assisted Mrs. W. H. Gifford Tuesday when she told about the "Romance of American Dress" at the Women's Club, are shown in the above photo. As each period of the country's settlement was discussed by Mrs. Gifford, members and guests of Sorosis appeared in costumes representative of the period. Mrs. LeRoy McGinty, extreme left, modeled a silk velvet and ermine gown of the "Gay nineties." Early 1900 was the period represented by Mrs. Wilson Barnes, second from left. Mrs. Eugene Linham, center, modeled a modern bride's gown. Wedding gown of early 1900 was shown by Miss Helen Pecht, second from right. At the extreme right, Mrs. C. W. Barnes is pictured in a Quaker costume typical of those worn in Pennsylvania.

Party Honors Seven-Year-Old

Marylyn Figley was guest of honor when her mother, Mrs. Walter Figley, 38 Rowland avenue, gave a party on Tuesday, her seventh birthday anniversary. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

The depressing question concerning the whereabouts of Gus and the other men continued with me as, with eyes fixed upon the impostor's figure flattened against the wall, his face turned toward it and his unwounded arm uplifted, I advanced to the table by which he had been standing and took from it the key to the door, which I had compelled him to take from his pocket and put there.

But though my muscles did not falter as I picked up the key, and with a quick backward glance to locate any furniture which might be in the way, began to sidle toward the door, never taking my eyes from the figure silhouetted against the opposite wall, I was quaking inside as if with ague. I was wondering too whether it would be wise to unlock the door before Gus and his men should come up to it.

I ventured one quick glance out of the window as I neared it, but not a living object was in sight, and I could hear no sound of struggle.

Tries Key In Door.

In vain I reminded myself of my instructions to Gus, that one blast of my whistle would mean that all the men should come at once to the house, but would also mean that they should exercise caution in their approach. I could do with a little less caution, I now told myself bitterly, as I moved to the door. Standing sidewise, so that I could keep one eye upon the man standing against the other wall, I inserted the key into the lock and turned it. Then I turned the doorknob and pulled the door ajar, just enough to assure myself that the key was the right one.

But I shut and locked the door as quickly as I had opened it, keeping my hand upon the key, however, while with my other hand I gripped my pistol, still keeping it trained upon the man opposite me.

Sounds From Next Room.

And then from the next room there came again that gurgling, choking noise.

I knew what I had to do now. The mandate was heavy upon me. I could not help now the old professor who, I was sure, was making that unearthly noise, but at least I could assure him that help was at hand.

I withdrew the key from the lock and tucked it into my bodice pocket. Then, with my eyes fixed upon the man facing the wall, I went to the closed door of the room from which the cry had come, and threw it open.

I saw the man against the wall stir at the sound, and I spoke quickly, sharply.

Madge Gives Orders.

"Keep your face against that wall!" I commanded. "I am watching your every movement."

"I wouldn't advise you to go into that room," he said, with a sneer in his voice. "It wouldn't be enjoyable for you."

"I am not going into the room now," I said, "but you are, and then I shall follow you."

My voice was shaking with rage and horror. For my one quick glance into the room had shown me the contorted faces and bulging eyes of two grieviously tortured men, sitting on the floor against the wall with feet lashed together, hands tied behind their backs, cruel gags in their mouths and blood upon their faces and clothing. One of them was Professor Diswell. I was sure of that.

The other might have been the twin brother of the man outside who had posed as the gardener. The answer to that was easy. This was the real servant of Professor Diswell. The man outside had impersonated him.

I walked back to the man who had impersonated the old professor and standing behind him spoke with slow emphasis.

"I am keeping right behind you, so there is no chance for you to do anything but obey. You will now walk in front of me into that other room and untie those men."

I was cut short by a violent pounding on the outer door and a shout—

"Let us in this minute, or we'll break the door down."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

PLAY THEM MENTALLY

When a situation is easy to read, you can mentally play the tricks according to some plan, and see what the result would be, just as clearly as if you played the cards themselves that way. If that process proves the plan hopeless, then try to figure out another method, and play it in your imagination, to see what will happen. Sometimes you can't arrive at the profitable procedure in any other way.

One West declarer at a No Trump game on this duplicate deal did some thinking when the spade 8 was led to the 10 and K. There went one stopper. If he worked on diamonds, after his first diamond lead they would kill his second spade stopper. After his second diamond lead, they would kill his third spade stopper. When he then lost his third diamond trick, South, if he won that one, could then cash enough spades to set him three tricks, counting the diamonds and the club A. So he abandoned that plan.

But if he worked on clubs, he probably could make it, by deep finessing against the J and 9 if they were held by North, South being surely marked with the A. So he decided on that. After discarding a diamond on the first trick, won by the spade A, he scored his own three hearts, not overtaking the J, and then led the club K. If South had won that, West would later have tried to finesse the 8, and after that the 10, which would have worked. South let the club K win, took the 8 with his A, then knocked out the second spade stopper.

The club 10 finesse won then, as also did the Q and the heart Q, making nine tricks in all for West, and he happily gave up the last three to diamonds.

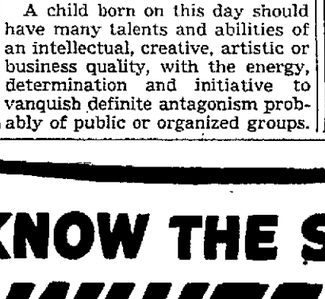
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

If West sees fit to overcall South's 1-Spade with 2-Diamonds on this deal, what is the soundest competitive action by North and South thereafter?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 9

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

WHILE THE sidereal operations show much activity in mundane affairs with the intellectual, artistic and professional talents and urges under splendid stimuli, yet there is also sign of powerful opposition to the attainment of the noblest aims and ambitions. This might come from a public, collective or organized group, and wounded feelings of pride may be the result. However, mentality and initiative should be under such splendid and practical spur that real loss or lasting frustration might be nil. All might be surprisingly swerved to success by perserverance, determination and enterprise.

Those whose birthday it is may find splendid opportunity for exercising and organizing their talents for intellectual, artistic, professional or commercial pursuits, albeit through the defeat of powerful opposition from either public, community or fraternal groups. The hurt pride and feelings may challenge effort to high achievements by sheer will power, resolution and positive initiative or energy. Surprising support may come then to the rescue on show of such determination.

A child born on this day should have many talents and abilities of an intellectual, creative, artistic or business quality, with the energy, determination and initiative to vanquish definite antagonism probably of public or organized groups.

DEMONSTRATION
9 O'CLOCK, OHIO THEATER
ADMISSION FREE
MOLASSES COCOA CAKE
½ cup Spry
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
5 tablespoons cocoa
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup light molasses
1 teaspoon soda
2 cups sifted flour
1 cup thick sour milk
Blend Spry, salt, vanilla and cocoa. Add brown sugar gradually and cream well. (Done so quickly—Spry mixes like magic!) Add eggs, singly, beating well after each addition. Add molasses and blend.
Sift soda with flour 3 times. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with sour milk, mixing after each addition until smooth. Bake in 10x 10x2-inch Spry-greased pan in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Frost with Vanilla Cream Frosting. See what a light, fine-grained cake Spry gives. And what a nice little saving you make compared to using expensive cake shortening!
VANILLA CREAM FROSTING
2 tablespoons Spry
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
5 tablespoons scalded cream (about)
Blend Spry, butter, vanilla and salt. Beat in ½ cup sugar. Add hot cream, alternately with remaining sugar, beating well after each addition. Add only enough cream to make a nice spreading consistency. Use this delicious, easy-to-make Spry frosting for other cakes, too.
(All measurements in these recipes are level)

"Cooking the Spry FULL FLAVOR way means compliments for the cook! I hear this constantly from women I meet at my Cooking Schools. For purer Spry lets natural food flavors come through FULL and true and delicious."
EMILY M. LAUTZ
Taste that tempting blend of molasses, brown sugar and cocoa, so FULL and rich. Purer Spry doesn't "dull" flavor as ordinary shortenings may
OF COURSE Spry cakes are lighter cakes — tender, fine-grained, velvety, too. But the big reason why folks fairly rave about them is the way they taste!
And how quickly they're mixed. Spry creams so easily. It's purer, too, and stays fresh longer. Three big extra advantages and only Spry gives all three! Change to Spry today. And be sure to come to Free Cooking School. Time and place above.

GALION LIGHT PLANT WORKERS GET PAY HIKE

Council Authorizes New Wage Schedule; Company Seeks Alley Vacation.

GALION — Employes of the electric light and power department were granted raises in salary by an ordinance passed Tuesday night by the city council. For those employes who are in the 45-90 cent per hour wage bracket a 10-cent hourly increase was given for those in the 90 cent and up hourly wage the increase was five cents per hour.

Mayor Amann gave the report of the funds collected for the month of March, totaling $429. Fines amounted to $318; costs $97, and forfeitures, $13.70.

An ordinance was passed giving authority to the city officers to promulgate necessary orders, rules and regulations for blackouts and air raids.

The Central Ohio Steel Products company presented a petition to council asking that the first alley east of South Market street, extending south from Parsons street, be vacated. The reason for this request is that the company expects to put a fence around their building and the alley interferes with its construction.

CLUB IN SESSION

GALION—Mrs. D. K. Davis, retiring president, presided at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Research club held at the home of Mrs. Fred Essex. Mrs. Donald Mochel was the hostess.

Mrs. Harry Volk read a paper entitled "The First Easter" and Mrs. Glenn Sanderlin presented a paper on "Hymns That Endure," by Fannie Crosby.

During the business meeting the president for the coming year, Lucy Ailer, named her program committee consisting of Mrs. Ed Rehm, chairman; Mrs. Shelby Burden, Mrs. Howard Duhamel, and Pearl Jourdan. Plans were discussed for the spring banquet to be held at the Methodist church May 5. The next meeting has been changed to Monday evening, April 20, and will be held at the home of Grace Weston.

200 AT DANCE

Bucyrus Police Ball Profits Go To Civilian Defense.

BUCYRUS—More than 100 couples were present for the 12th annual Policemn's ball, held Tuesday night at the Moose home. This year marked the first occasion the inauguration of the Policemen's ball that the event was not held in the Bucyrus armory.

Proceeds of this year's ball will be used to further the civilian defense program in Bucyrus.

Former Chief of Police Philip Trautman led the grand march and dancing to Mack Finch's orchestra continued until a late hour.

In charge of arrangements were the officers of the Bucyrus Police Benefit association, Chief of Police Arthur L. Stuckert, president, and D. J. Robertson, secretary-treasurer.

PLAN 5-COUNTY SPRING MEETING

BUCYRUS—Mrs. L. B. Thompson and Mrs. Fred Vollmer were appointed as general program co-chairmen for the annual spring five county group convention of King's Daughters to be held in Bucyrus, Tuesday, May 12, when the county union met to make plans for the one day meeting Monday night.

In addition to naming committee to be in charge of the affair the county union set June 8th as the date of the summer meeting of the union which will begin with a dinner at the chapter house. Mrs. George McBeth was named general chairman.

MARRIAGE LAST FEB. 22 LISTED

BUCYRUS — Announcement is being made today of the marriage February 22 at Napoleon, O., of Miss Marjorie Annabelle Hauser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hauser of Sugar Grove road and Edward Booth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Booth of Crestline.

The bride is a 1937 graduate of Wheatstone High school and also attended Mansfield Commercial institute. She is employed at the General Electric plant.

Booth, who attended Crestline schools, is associated with the Summit Fast Freight docks in Mansfield where the couple will live.

IN HOSPITAL.

WILLARD—Thelma Allen, 10, of Greenwich underwent an emergency appendectomy at the hospital here.

"No Child of Mine will ever get WORMS!"

Don't be so sure, Mother!

Anybody, anywhere, can have roundworms! Yes, and the ugly creatures may be living inside your child right now, starting trouble, without your even knowing it. If your child is pale, underweight, nervous, has an uneasy stomach, picks at nose or seat — these ugly roundworms may be at work.

Play safe! Get Jayne's Vermifuge at once. It acts very gently, yet expels stubborn worms. And if no worms are there, it acts just as a mild laxative. Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine, used by millions, for over a century. Demand Jayne's Vermifuge! At all drug stores.

NAMED TO POST

CRESTLINE—Word was received in Crestline Tuesday that Al Pesek, son of Mrs. Albert Meinzer, North Thoman street, had been selected by Gene Tunney, head of all physical education in the navy department, as a member of the Physical Education department and was sworn for that work at Dallas, Texas, on Monday morning.

He left immediately for Norfolk, Va., for a six-week training period.

During the business meeting the local tent planned to present a flag to the newly organized Ashland Navy Mothers' club.

THEATERS

Picture Held Over.

"Kings Row," the filmization of Henry Bellamann's engrossing novel of small-town life before the turn of the century, will be held over through Friday at the Ohio theater by popular request. Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan, Ann Sheridan and Betty Field top the cast with Cummings playing the lead role of "Parris Mitchell," the son of a foreign gentlewoman who leaves Kings Row to study medicine in Vienna. Betty Field appears as "Cassie," the ill-fated daughter of a doctor played by Claude Rains, while Reagan and Miss Sheridan are teamed as the town's gay young blade and the girl from the wrong side of the tracks. Marie Ouspenskaya and Charles Coburn are in the cast.

Adventure In China.

When a New York cab driver captures two killers and wins attention in the headlines he finds that his adventures are only beginning in "A Yank On the Burma Road," showing at the Madison. Acceptance of an offer to lead a fleet of trucks over the Burma road means complications at Rangoon where he is persuaded by an attractive girl, anxious to join her husband in Chungking, to accept a passenger. Barry Nelson plays the driver and Laraine Day has the part of the girl. Stuart Crawford and Keye Lucke are in the cast. Roddy McDowall, the child actor in "How Green Was My Valley," plays the leading role in "On the Sunny Side," the second picture.

Jack Oakie Featured.

"Rise and Shine," with Jack Oakie George Murphy and Linda Darnell opens Thursday at the Ritz. "Outlaw of the Desert," with William Boyd is the co-feature.

Historical Theme.

An old New England legend telling how Daniel Webster outtalked the devil himself in debate forms the basis of "All That Money Can Buy," opening today at the Park. Based on Stephen Vincent Benet's story, "The Devil and Daniel Webster," the story plot deals with the bargain made by a young farmer who offered to sell his soul to the devil in return for seven years of prosperity. James Craig plays the role of the young man and Edward Arnold enacts the part of Daniel Webster. Simone Simon is in the cast. "Obliging Young Lady," with Joan Carroll and Ruth Warrick is the second attraction.

Catholic Mass.

Sponsored by the Knights of Columbus the 10-reel motion picture, "The Eternal Gift," showing at the Majestic, is the first picture of the Catholic Solemn Mass ever filmed. The picture was produced under the supervision of the Perpetual Novena in honor of Our Sorrowful Mother. The showing ends today.

Dual Role.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Spencer Tracy's starring vehicle opening a two-day showing at the Majestic Thursday presents a cast that includes Lana Turner, Ingrid Bergman. Tracy plays the role of a young scientist who attempts to prove that all men hold within themselves both good and evil. He uses himself for experimental purposes and ultimately causes his own destruction. "The Masked Phantom" is the second attraction.

TELLS BUCYRUS COUNCIL RELIEF FUND DEPLETED

City Auditor Says City Can Vote Bond Issue or Use Its General Fund.

BUCYRUS—That funds appropriated by Bucyrus city council at the beginning of the year for relief purposes have been exhausted and the city is facing a serious problem for the care of its poor, was the warning issued by City Auditor E. C. Oppenlander, in submitting his quarterly report of receipts and expenditures for the first quarter of 1942, at city council meeting Tuesday night.

Bucyrus has only two alternatives in providing for its poor relief, that of voting a bond issue or of delving into its general fund, Oppenlander told council. "The city is required by law to provide for its poor and the state can take such measures as it sees fit to provide such funds," he stated. In several Ohio municipalities where a similar condition exists, money is being taken from utility funds to provide for relief. Bucyrus has no such surplus in its city owned water works plant, he explained.

Sufficient funds are in the process of collection to provide April relief after which no funds will be available unless action is taken by the Ohio legislature to provide some means of revenue, he stated.

Relief expenditures in Bucyrus average between $1,700 and $1,800 a month, Safety Director Carl Jacobs stated in submitting his report for February and March. February's expenditures including administration totaled $1,779.24 and March bills totaled $1,770.50.

The parking situation again came up before council for discussion after Mayor William P. Whiteamire went on record as favoring the installation of parking meters which he said were "the only means of relieving the parking problem." In his recommendations Mayor Whiteamire also asked that council work out some means of regulatig parking in the down town area. Councilman Ed Carter recommended that diagonal parking be resumed on the inside of Washington square as a means of providing additional parking area.

In anticipation of the discontinuation July 1 of the Bucyrus Recreation center which has been operated by WPA funds, Miss Rhea Tracht and Miss Annabelle Wyatt appeared before council asking that council take steps to continue the program. Council members expressed themselves as favoring the work but due to insufficient available funds took no immediate action.

Looking toward an influx of defense workers brought by the plant now under construction in Marion county, council discussed the problem of trailer camps and also recommended that a study be made relative to declaring the city a defense area that a priority rating might make possible a more extensive building program.

Mayor Whiteamire advised council that he had conferred with state highway officials with a view of securing a widening and improvement program for East Mansfield street and that state officials had advised that council wait until the state had worked out a program for highway improvement.

GEN. JOHNSON: End 'Wildcat' Rubber Strike at Akron

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — The rumor in Washington is that OPA has practically adopted the Baruch plan of a "price ceiling" over everything, and that B. M. Baruch is said to be very much pleased, because, at last, the final principal step he suggested years ago for industrial mobilization of the United States has been taken.

Among those steps were one-man control of industry; committees for each industry dove-tailing with corresponding committees of the government for that industry; the purchase of vast reserve stocks of "strategic materials" — rubber, tin, manganese, etc., and, above all, a "ceiling over the price of every service, right or thing" as that price existed at the beginning of the war.

Gen. Johnson.

Baruch began advocating all this years before we got into the war, and, while the conductor of this column worked closely with him on it and advocated the same things, we make bold to doubt that he gets much satisfaction out of what has been done and what it is now proposed to do—especially as to price "ceilings."

Why? Because it is "too little and too late." All that Baruch ever said on the subject of ceilings warned against that. The suggestion came from his experience in the World war.

Then a plan to put an upper limit on prices was attempted but, at that time, inflation had already gotten under way.

If there was one thing that experience proved, it was that, if you wait to apply price control until the components of principal prices have gone sky-high, it is too late to relate the whole price structure back to the beginning of the war and get prices restored to the old level.

All that you can then do is to squeeze swollen, inflationary profits out of a few prices. This we actually did do in 1918 but the public benefit was not half what it could have been if we could only have started in time.

In the case of the principal war material—steel, for example,—you can't wait until the price of labor, ore, limestone, alloys and transportation, which the steel-maker must buy, have reached a zenith and then (without something amounting to confiscation) make the steel man sell to you at a pre-war price. Baruch warned of all this in detail.

Thus while this writer has no authority to speak for him, it is not hard to imagine that he can't be getting much satisfaction out of this belated adoption of his industrial mobilization plan.

Germany adopted it from the beginning. So did our general staff.

You may recall that, before the ill-fated Stettinius board was quietly dissolved and its recommendations silenced, it was rumored that the war college and the general staff had an "industrial mobilization plan." Those rumors were squeezed to death also by the administration which said they were "just something being talked about in the war department."

As a matter of fact they were printed in a war department pamphlet called the "Industrial Mobilization Plan." They contained all that Baruch had been suggesting and had lectured about for many years at the general staff, the war college and the army industrial college.

It was the plan that the Germans adopted and that we now have adopted piece-meal, "too little and too late."

Perhaps there would be a certain "I told you so" satisfaction in all this to some men, but Barusch isn't that sort of a man. He is only concerned with seeing us win the war. That has been his only interest in this matter since the beginning.

CONVICT 33 OF CEMETERY MAIL FRAUD CHARGES

Jurors Acquit Only Two Men After Taking 600 Ballots In 44 Hours.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Thirty-three men convicted of mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale of lots in three central Ohio cemeteries will be sentenced Friday by U. S. Judge Robert R. Nevin of Dayton.

A federal court jury which heard six months of testimony against 35 officers and salesmen for Forest Glen, incorporated, Marion firm which promoted the lot sales, acquitted only two defendants in a verdict returned at 9:20 o'clock last night after a week's deliberation.

Robert Marshall, former vice president and general manager of Forest Glen, and J. W. Jacoby, former president and counsel, both of Marion, were convicted of nine counts of using the mails to defraud and one of conspiracy, as were 10 salesman. The others were convicted of only one count, use of the mails to defraud.

The jury freed Gus F. Bieber of Bucyrus, a salesman, and Thomas H. Malloy of Marion, auditor for the agency which sold burial plots in Forest Glen cemetery at Marion, Glen Rest at Columbus and Glen Haven at Springfield.

Jury foreman Floyd Cady of Newport, said 600 ballots were taken in 44 hours of deliberation, the panel voting separately on each count against each defendant.

Found guilty were:

Carl Bemman, Cleveland; William A. Bennett, Washington, D. C.; Hiram Berry, Toledo; E. G. Blue, Marion; G. F. Buck, Marion; William N. Clark, Columbus, former sales manager of the Columbus office; L. A. Cratty, Marion; R. C. Deck, Toledo; W. C. Deweese, Columbus; Howard R. Dustin, Westerville; Williard S. Holcombe, Columbus; Earl H. Holliday, Highland Park, Mich.

A. L. Mallott, Marion; W. Hal Marshall, Morenci, Mich.; Byron L. McClure, Columbus; S. C. Niedigh, Marion; Earl Pardee, Findlay; George Reinwald, Marion; Dan S. Riggle, Columbus; William N. Rothert, Columbus; William L. Rucker, Salem; Paul Secord, Delaware.

Karl G. Snyder, Washington, Court House; G. F. Stott, Springfield; R. S. Trafton, Jamestown, N. Y., H. C. Van Gilder, Columbus; Eugene J. Vankuren, Marion; Harry J. Wildermuth, Columbus; T. B. Wildermuth, Columbus; C. O. Willey, Marion, and G. F. Walter, Cleveland.

Fifteen seniors from Shiloh high school learned about criminal trial procedure this morning while they were special guests at a jury trial in common pleas court. During a recess, Judge C. H. Huston told the boys and girls of the work of his court and explained how trials are conducted. The jury today heard the case of a colored defendant charged with cutting with intent to wound.

A Mansfield couple would like to find the mother and dad of a soldier named "Jim" for they have an Easter letter, mailed special delivery, for "Jim's" parents when they do. The letter was delivered Easter morning to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, 335 Central avenue, whose address was given in full on the envelope. But this Mr. and Mrs. Miller do not happen to be the parents of the youth. The letter was postmarked in Chicago, and the contents told the home folks to "keep 'em flying" and thanked them for $2 recently received.

The high school pupils composing the Crescendo club, musical organization, felt the effects of the government war time program this week when they learned that it would not be possible to charter a bus to transport them to Cleveland for two opera performances Saturday. Thirty members of the organization had purchased opera tickets for one or both performances and now only about half that number will be able to attend due to lack of transporation.

WORKERS GO BACK TO JOBS AT GOODYEAR

Sitdown Terminated as Union Agrees to Negotiate on Speed-Up Protest.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON—A "wildcat" strike at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company ended today, restoring the flow of rubberized material to several thousand Goodyear employes producing such war products as balloons, blimps, rubber boats and bullet-sealing gasoline tanks.

The sit-down, involving pay rates, lasted about 12 hours. It began shortly after noon yesterday and ended about 2 a. m. today after international officers of the CIO United Rubber Workers, who had declared the strike a wildcat affair, talked wth the sit-downers.

The dispute affected 440 "spreader room" workers—110 on each of four shifts. A total of 330 participated in the sit-down before production was resumed at 2 a. m.

Sherman H. Dalrymple, president of the International Union, headed the delegation which persuaded the workers to resume production. He announced termination of the strike.

Conditions of the resumption were not announced immediately.

The sitdown began at noon yesterday when new orders, increasing the speed of the automatic fabricating machines and changing the number of attendants and rates of pay, became effective.

L. E. Judd, Goodyear spokesman, said under the new system one runner and one helper is assigned to each machine. Previously each helper had been assigned to two or three machines. Runners' pay was raised about two cents to $1.50 an hour, and a similar increase resulted in a rate of $1.45 for helpers, he asserted. The speed of the machines was increased as the result of a study, Judd said.

C. V. Wheeler, president of the union local, reported the strikers "said that when the company took the pay cuts down off the board, they would return to work."

Union leaders said they would try to work out the workers' grievances in negotiations with the company and that meantime no stoppages would be tolerated.

The workers contend that new orders increasing the speed of fabricating machines and changing attendant and pay schedules have resulted in what amounts to a 15 per cent cut in pay, based on the previous production rate.

WOMEN STUDY FOOD PROGRAM

Farmwives Stage Achievement Day Meeting; Canning and Sewing Discussed.

Richland county's rural women will prepare for war emergencies during the coming year by studying the preparation of meals with home-grown foods and making dresses from cotton materials, Miss Elizabeth Bay, county home demonstration, told 100 women yesterday at an Achievement day program at North Lake park pavilion.

The program was in observance of the first anniversary of home demonstration work in Richland county. Miss Bay became the county's first home demonstration agent last April.

Miss Bay said the extension program for this summer will include demonstrations of canning and storing vegetables and a continuation of projects started during the past year.

The dress-making and food-preparation projects will comprise the major part of the 1942 home extension program, Miss Bay said. They will not be started until next fall.

Speaking at yesterday's meeting, Miss Thelma Beall, home management specialist at Ohio State university, stressed the importance of making every possible kitchen and household article at home since priorities and rationing will make a number of them difficult to obtain and higher in price.

Mrs. Harry Maxwell, Troy township, chairman of the county rural women's council, presided at the meeting. The program included a symposium entitled "Victuals for Victory" and a skit, "How we go to Camp." Both were presented by county women.

SAWYER TO STAY OUT OF RACE FOR GOVERNOR, AID PARTY MAN

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI — Charles Sawyer, a tireless worker for party harmony, is leaving the race for the Democratic nomination for governor to others with a promise to support the party's candidate, "whoever he may be."

The Democratic national committeeman's statement last night declining to be a candidate had been expected, and political observers speculated on its effect on other aspirants.

Hamilton county Democratic leaders ventured that it would give the green light to several who had been waiting for Sawyer's decision. So far only State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson has started a formal campaign, although Industrial Commissioner Clarence H. Knisely has indicated informally his candidacy.

Former Rep. John McSweeney of Wooster is expected to announce shortly and local leaders said former Mayor Ray Miller of Cleveland was considering entering. They added that there was a possibility that former Governor Martin L. Davey might enter a candidate if Vic Donahey, three-time governor and ex-senator, adhered to his refusal to come out of retirement.

"I feel that someone fully qualified will be nominated," Sawyer said, "and I can be of greater service if I am seeking nothing for myself.

"Today my only interest is to see this country win the war and to see all groups and parties united behind the president to accomplish that end."

DIES AT HOME

Mrs. Frank Beachler, 71, Succumbs at Lucas.

LUCAS — Mrs. Frank Beachler, 71, well-known Lucas resident, died unexpectedly Tuesday evening at her home following a heart attack.

Born Dec. 24, 1879, in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, she was the former Laura May Russell. She had resided in Lucas for the past 20 years.

Surviving are her husband; one daughter, Mrs. Floyd Hunt of Mansfield; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Byers of Jacksonville, Pa., and Mrs. Iola Weigle, of Carlisle, Pa.; three grandchilren and one great grandchild.

Following a short home service at 2 p. m., regular funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday, at the Lucas Congregational church in charge of Rev. John M. Peyton. Burial will be in the I. O. O. F. cemetery near Lucas.

SEEKS NOMINATION

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Edwin J. Bradley, a former Republican, will seek the Democratic nomination for congress in the 20th district. Bradley will oppose Rep. Martin L. Sweeney and Michael A. Feighan, former legislator.

Pair Held After Man Confesses He Abducted Woman

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Facing possible federal prosecution under the Lindbergh act, two Chicagoans were in custody today while authorities investigatetd their asserted confession that they kidnaped Mrs. Mary J. Jacobson, 33, of Calumet City, Ill., last March 31.

The prisoners, arrested yesterday, were identified as Joseph Delatore Hepburn, 22, and George Shimchuck, 25, both of Chicago.

Shimchuck walked into police headquarters and announced "I'm a wanted man." Later, police said, he confessed that he and a companion abducted Mrs. Jacobson as she entered her parked car in Hammond, Ind. Hepburn was arrested later.

Police went into action after Mrs. Jacobson was found, bound and gagged, in the shrubbery of a suburban Cincinnati park. The woman said her abductors attacked her.

The men also confessed, police announced, that two rings and a watch valued at $300 were taken from Mrs. Jacobson, and pawned.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Irish McGee, the eminent airplane builder from California, currently sojourning in our midst as the operator of Possum Run golf course, was all set, so he tells me, to announce the opening of his links layout yesterday morning.

He was all set, that is, until he cast his weather eye about and noted a curious disturbance in the atmosphere.

"This," says he, "is a phenomenon of nature that looks suspiciously like rain, and if this is so, then the ground is apt to become somewhat damp, particularly in spots, and this will interfere with the opening of my sporty little golf course.

"I will let my weather eye wander over the hills and dales and see if this stuff is really rain, and then I will be guided accordingly in announcing my decision which is being awaited with bated breath by the putter pushing populace."

So what does he do but let his eye wander over the hills and dales according to plan, and he rolls it on the plain, but when he tries to run his eye through the woods, the meteorological optic (weather eye) objects.

"Look, my good fellow," protested the now soggy orb, "This may be dew to you, but here we call it rain. Believe me."

"And how was I to know?" inquired Irish. "And me just back from California. I thought maybe it was a fog bank."

* * *

And this is how Mr. McGee became acclimated once more to the curious quirks of nature at Possum Run where sometimes in midsummer there are such unseemly things as tornadoes, and hurricanes, and hailstones bigger than golf balls.

"So it rains," Mr. McGee tells me, "so I postpone for a little while the opening of the golf course. But give me a little sunshine and I'll give you a ring in a few days and announce the opening."

McGee reports that many golfers already have been batting the ball around on sunny days, but staying off the greens where they concede themselves the usual two putts, and this is the time of year I should be playing because I concede much better than I putt.

"And why haven't you been out to look at that thing you call your golf game," McGee asks me. "I thought I'd be seeing you out here before this."

* * *

"I will be there," I told him, "as soon as I can thumb a ride on someone's handle bars. I have propositioned several persons on this score, but they must have been brighter than they looked."

I should be there? An athlete like me? Take it fietzel, Dietzel.

DETROIT FAVORED IN HOCKEY FINALS

DETROIT — (UP) — The Detroit Red Wings entered the National Hockey league Stanley cup playoffs with slim chances of passing the semi-finals but today they were favored to cop the trophy after scoring two straight triumphs over Toronto in the best-of-seven final series

Surprise victors over Montreal Canadiens and the higher ranking Boston Bruins to reach the finals, the Red Wings swept to their second win in as many starts over highly-favored Toronto, 4 to 2, before 14,079 fans last night.

NO CHANGE MADE IN ABC LEADERS

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Leadership standings of the American Bowling Congress stood unchanged today as booster bowlers monopolized the 36 alleys for the second day in a row.

Charlie Haas of Columbus posted the best score yesterday with a total of 1,871 in the all-events division. He lacked 21 points, however, of crashing the first 10 in this classification.

Yankees Tabbed Shoo-In

Red Sox Picked To Wind Up In Second.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The very best handicappers in the baseball business today tabbed the New York Yankees as a shoo-in for the American league pennant and the Boston Red Sox to nip the Chicago White Sox for second.

And if the Yanks, by some chance or other, should miss grabbing their second straight junior circuit championship—their sixth in seven years—there will be an exceptional collection of red faces among the baseball writers as 73 of the 76 voting in the annual Associated Press poll couldn't see the Bronx Bombers anywhere but on top. Of the other three, two placed the Yanks second and the other third. The three top ballots the Yanks didn't get were split—two to the White Sox (by Gene Kessler, Chicago Times, and Dave Hoff, AP Chicago) and one to the Red Sox (Burt Whitman, Boston Herald).

On a basis of eight points for a first-place vote, seven for a second, six for a third, etc., the Yanks piled up 604 points—four less than perfection.

A photo finish, on the other hand, was forecast for the runner-up spot, with the Red Sox getting the call, 488 to 482, despite the two first-place ballots for Jimmy Dykes' Dandies. In predicting a duplicate of the 1941 pennant finish, the writers gave Boston 39 second place votes to 31 for the White Sox.

The field was well spread out behind the top three. The balloting generally followed the finish of last year's race. Cleveland and Detroit wound up in a fourth-place tie last year. This time, the Indians were picked for the spot with 341 points, and the Tigers polled 309 to head the second division.

SEMI-PRO LEAGUE STARTED BY TIFFIN

TIFFIN—(AP)—Charles Lecrone, president of the Tiffin club of the defunct Ohio State Baseball league, has invited six teams to join a new semi-professional league. Players would be compensated by a percentage of the gate receipts. The invitations went to Fremont, Fostoria, Findlay, Marion, Sandusky and Bucyrus.

Diners Take League Title

Score Shutout on Last Day of Matinee Race.

Max Diner girls yesterday won the championship of the Tuesday matinee bowling league at Colony alleys by the margin of one game when they blanked Hawkinson Treads in the final match of the season.

The Diners last week rolled into second place, and yesterday they left three teams, Helen Kern Beauty salon, Moose No. 2 and Hering's Grocery, deadlocked in the runner-up position.

Donna Schuster paced the Diners with the league's high total of 531, and the champs also turned in high team total of 2118.

Ann Hergatt rolled high game of 209, and Moose No. 2 chalked up high team game of 735

Cowboy Shows Trick Shots

COWBOY WESTON

Cowboy Charlie Weston, 65-year-old pocket billiard professional, and one-time world champion, entertained Mansfield cue wielders with four exhibition matches followed by demonstrations of trick shots at Andregg Billiards and the Smokehouse yesterday afternoon and night. Crippled from an automobile accident five years ago, and suffering from a heart ailment, the Cowboy still was able to make the balls behave in his interesting trick shot repertoire.

High Schools Hope for Bus Tire Ration Revision

COLUMBUS —(U P)— Officials of the National High School Athletic Federation probably will seek modification of a federal ruling banning allocation of tires and tubes to school buses used to transport high school athletes and teams, Commissioner H. R. Townsend of the Ohio High School Athletic associatinon said today.

* * *

Townsend said that H. V. Porter, Chicago, national federation secretary was "optimistic" about getting the office of price administration to ease the ruling.

"As it now stands, the ruling won't wreck the high school athletic program in Ohio but it won't help it any, either," Townsend said. "the high schools will not follow any policy contrary to successful prosecution of the war. It should be noted, however, that the government wants us to continue our normal sports program and even to expand it. It will be difficult to do this if we don't have convenient school bus transportation."

The Ohio commissioner said that school buses equipped with tires and tubes obtained before rationing began early this year can haul athletic teams without any restrictions. Many schools are shifting their t s around to keep complete sets of these pre-rationing tires on buses to be used to carry athletic and other extra-curricular groups.

Inwood Smith, state tire rationing coordinator, has received confirmation from the OPA that the ban on use of rationed tires for transportation of athletic teams still stands.

* * *

Townsend had asked Smith to clarify the ruling after New York high school authorities reportedly were given permission to use rationed rubber to haul their teams.

Smith believed the chances of modification are "very slim."

Mary McMullen last night turned in the season's high game of 245 for both men and women in the mixed doubles bowling league at Colony alleys, replacing Bud Windsor at the top of the list.

She also turned high total of 580 for the evening, and teamed with Pop Warner for high team total of 1108.

Golfers Fear Jinx No. 10

Augusta Course Boasts One Tough Dog-Leg.

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(U.P.)—There's jinx hole on the Augusta national course where the masters tournament begins tomorrow and the pros think players who crack par at the Green usually are in the money.

It often works out that way and Sam Snead, for once, is not taking any chances. He played a practice round in 68 yesterday and then went back and played that jinx hole—Number 10—three times.

"It's the toughest hole on the layout," Snead said. "If you beat par on number 10 the other should be easy."

Sam Byrd, the ex-New York Yankee, explained it by saying that the "prevailing winds" make it difficult to control a drive and it is tough to get out of the woods on either side of the fairway.

The 10th hole is a 465 yard dog leg to the left—the longest par four on the course—and the green has a slant which makes it difficult to get that second shot to stay on.

CRONIN SENDS SOX LOOKING FOR BATS

LEXINGTON, Ky. —(AP)— After watching the feeble efforts of his Boston Red Sox against the Cincinnati Reds yesterday at Louisville, Manager Joe Cronin sent all his players to the famous bat factory for new supplies. They will use them this afternoon against the same Reds.

The hibernating batting power of the Cincinnati Reds awakened yesterday and they battered out an 11 to 2 verdict over the Boston Red Sox. Bucky Walters was in mid-season form, allowing the sockers only two runs on their nine hits

SEEKS SECOND TITLE

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(ANS)—Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta today sought her second golf title in two weeks as she opposed Louise Suggs of Lithia Springs, Ga., in the finals of the 12th annual Forest Hills Augusta women's invitational tournament.

Bill Brinning Leads Tappan

Rolls High Total of 603 In Alley League.

Bill Brinning turned in a 603 total on games of 204-233-166 for top honors in the Tappan bowling league at Colony alleys last night, but he missed high game by two pins as Joe Harrod rolled 235.

Mary Gentille paced the Tappan girls league with a 402 total and high game of 166.

PYTLAK RECLASSIFIED

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Frankie Pytlak, 32-year-old catcher for the Boston Red Sox, may be in the army by the end of April, according to his Cleveland draft board. Albert B. Seay, board chairman, said today that the former Cleveland catcher, traded to Boston last year, had been classified 1-A and probably would be inducted this month.

Scribe Puts Hex On Alsab, Picks Him To Win Derby

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—Boy, pass me a mint julep and that list of Kentucky Derby nominations. I'm fixing to get some more horses shot.

They're giving away defense bonds and stamps this year in connection with a contest based on the Derby, which will be run on May 2. Trick is to name the first five horses in order and the winning time. The one who comes closest gets the big prize, with scores of lesser prizes ranging along behind.

The contest is limited to the press and, while I'm entering, I wish to advise my brethren they have nothing to fear, in case there is the slightest doubt on this angle. Those prizes, as many of them as they are, don't go back nearly far enough to reach me on the basis of the ones I will pick. It's all I can do to get one horse to, live through the afternoon, much less try to get five in order in one race.

The horses I pick are great and gallant steeds going to the post. Fine, sleek beauties whose pelts glisten out there in the sun. They arch their necks and dance and can't wait to go. But something seems to happen to the ones I pick.

* * *

The next day the papers carry a little horse obituary saying Old Blaze was going great back there, in eighth place at the far turn, but stepped into a gopher hole, or stumbled over a stray pebble the size of a green pea, fell down and had to be destroyed. It's getting me gun-shy.

They shoot anywhere from five to a dozen of them on me every week.

Nevertheless, here is the way I picked them for that derby contest:

Alsab, With Regards. Requested, Sun Again and Bless Me.

I put Alsab out there in front for two very good and specific reasons (1) that he can go when right and (2) Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons said only last week he is the horse to beat. If that's good enough for Mr. Fitz it's good enough for me.

There is a possibility that none of these will start, but that holds true all the way through the 150 nominations, inasmuch as only 15 or 20 will go to the post.

* * *

Then they asked you for the time. Inasmuch as they didn't say anything about jotting down two different figures to cover a fast track and one over which they will plow if it comes up mud, I should have given them just some compromise figure. But that's not experting. There could be five or six seconds difference due to the condition of that which is known among us turfmen as the racing strip. So I put down two times—a neat, round, well-turned 2:04 for a fast track and an ordinary 2:09 if rain falls in ol' Kaintuck.

JAC Tourney Entries Jump

Norwalk Sends Seven Boys to Gloves Fest.

Entries are "pouring in" today for the annual JAC amateur boxing tournament to be staged tomorrow and Friday nights at the high school gym.

Opening his morning mail, Jim Morgan found seven entries from Norwalk, four from Mt. Vernon, two from Loudonville, and three from Sandusky.

The Norwalk contingent of leather pushers is composed of Ray Blinzely, 180, Joe Bargic, 140, William Martin, 182, Wesley Preston, 132, Melvin Bartholomew, 134, Lawrence Groot, 170, and Paul Timmons, 147.

Bus Doehla, former Mansfielder, is sending four boys from Mt. Vernon, Walter Beckholt, 137, Clyde Deem, 118, Dick Kerin, 160, and Lloyd Morton, 145.

The Loudonville boys are Flyod Kemp, 147, and Owen Ostrander.

And from "Boys' City" at Sandusky came the entries of Beebe Bennett, 175, Martin Cook, 148, and Stu White, 143.

Entries will not be closed until weighing-in time tomorrow night at 6 o'clock. Pairings will then be made for first round matches, and the first bout is scheduled at 8 p. m.

Special prizes are being awarded for the outstanding fighter of the tournament, the quickest knockout, and to the manager with the most entries, and the manager with the most winners

Net proceeds will be split evenly three ways between the Red Cross, a high school fund, and the JAC sports fund.

John Eichinger and Sam Morgan will be the referees, Earl Culp timekeeper, and Paul Eliot, George Allerding and Gyp Miller, judges.

HASSETT ON BLOCK

BALTIMORE—(INS)—The New York Yankees have asked for waivers on First Baseman Buddy Hassett, it was learned today. It was believed that Manager McCarthy will try to send Hassett to an international league club or to Kansas City.

Newark Hopes For Big Meet

Attempts To Replace Mansfield In Track.

NEWARK—(U.P.)—The fledgling Newark relays will make an energetic bid next week for the mythical honor of top-ranking Ohio high school invitational track meet relinquished by the Mansfield relays.

Abandonment of the Mansfield cinder classic because of a newly-imposed ban on participation by out-of-state athletes thrust the two-year-old Newark meet into the limelight.

The Newark sponsors, led by Cliff Orr, were quick to grasp the opportunity and they moved their original date of May 2 up to Saturday, April 18, scheduled date of the Mansfield affair.

With entries from 18 outside schools already received for this year's meet, Orr predicts the third Newark relays will be the biggest invitational track event in Ohio this year. The entry list is limted to Ohio schools but Orr sees no reason why the meet eventually should not equal or surpass the Mansfeld classic, established in 1927.

Despite the presence of out-of-state talent at Mansfield, the Newark performances last year bettered Mansfield in four events and equalled it in one more. Mansfield held the edge in eight other events for which records are comparable.

Orr has one tough nut to crack to put his relays in the same class as Mansfield. He must get the entries of Cleveland schools who year after year rank at or near the top of the state track standings. So far, none of the Cleveland schools has entered this year or in the previous two years.

* * *

Schools represented among the entries so far are Akron North, Dayton Roosevelt, Marietta, McConnelsville, Toledo DeVilbiss and Waite, Lima Central, Chillicothe, Canton McKinley, Mechanicsburg, Columbus West, North, East, South and Central, Springfield and Newark.

Springfield, the defending champion, won last year's meet with 56½ points to 46½ for Columbus Central.

LEARN OF DEATH

GALION—Word has been received here of the accidental death of Mrs. Frank McNeal, 59, of Alliance, mother of Reed Williams, 254 Clymer avenue. Mrs. McNeal was instantly killed when her car was struck by a Pennsylvania train earlier Tuesday at a crossing five miles north of Alliance. She is survived by her son and her husband, Frank McNeal of Alliance.

HONORS SQUAD

Galion PTA Entertains 21 Players at Banquet.

GALION—At a banquet held Tuesday night at the East school gymnasium the East PTA honored the squad members of the grade school championship basketball team. The team composed of 21 members were city champions and co-league grade school champions. Earlier in the season they also won the city grade school volleyball championship.

During the basketball season the squad won 12 games and lost one.

During the program which followed the dinner, Principal C. M. Stover introduced the squad after which Harold Borror, captain of the team, responded to his team-mates. Other speakers included Superintendent M. A. Povenmire, Coach Mackey, Mrs. Chester Beach, O. J. Dewalt and Martha Albrecht.

Group singing was led by Jean Leavenworth accompanied by Margaret Ruppert.

ON FURLOUGH

GALION—Lewis B. Scribner, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Scribner, 431 South Union street, is home on a 15-day furlough for the first time since he enlisted 15 years ago. He is Chief Yeoman in the United States Navy.

During the 15 years' in the service which Scribner spent on the Pacific, he spent over two years at Pearl Harbor. He was also stationed at Sitka, Alaska.

FUNERAL SET

CRESTLINE—Funeral services for Emanuel Shearer, 73, will be held at the Orie Garverick funeral home Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. S. A. Metzger, pastor of the English Lutheran church will officiate. Burial will be made in Oakwood cemetery at Bucyrus.

Mr. Shearer died Monday at the Crawford County Hospital where he had been a patient for two weeks.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

NARROW PATH CONTINUED BY STOCK MARKET

Control of Industry and Batan News Slow Down Buying Urge on Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks continued today the narrow and slightly irregular price shifts which marked the previous session.

Supported were Eastman, Boeing, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Western Union and Southern Pacific. Somewhat backward were American Telephone and U. S. Steel.

Commodities were steady and bonds slightly uneven.

While stability of the share list indicated there was little urge to sell in the face of the more disquieting news from Batan and the application of new controls on industry, market followers showed little disposition to resume the bidding which lifted prices at the start of the week.

Further evidence of the feverish pace of industrial activity throughout the country attendant upon the war effort was the weekly report of the Edison Electric institute showing power production in the week ended April 4 increased more than seasonally expected over the preceding week and rose sharply over a year ago. Output of 3,348,608,000 kilowatt hours compared with 3,345,502,000 in the preceding period and 2,959,646,000 last year.

mander in the Australia-New Zealand zone, conferred for two hours.

It was announced that the Australian supreme war council would meet later today and that the Australian war cabinet would meet tomorrow. These meetings were called, it was understood, to consider subjects discussed at the war conference.

(The London Daily Mail in a Melbourne dispatch reported that many more American troops had reached Australia in a convoy and were already encamped ready for action. The dispatch said Gen. Blamey, whose arrival was announced March 27, came in the convoy.)

The troops came from every corner of the United States, the dispatch said.

are standing together pleading the cause of solidarity. Accept our presence together here as symbolic."

Both Green and Murray said the labor peace was effected at the request of President Roosevelt and Green added that they had "assured the president" labor would relinquish the right to strike voluntarily for the duration of the war.

"But we never will agree that the right to strike shall be taken from us by force," he thundered, answering what he termed attacks in newspapers and congress against labor.

Senators Predict 48-Hour Work Week

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Administration senators today predicted that the 40 hour week for industries will soon be supplanted by a 48 hour schedule without overtime pay.

Sen. Elmer Thomas (D.) Okla., said that the administration is seeking an agreement with labor leaders for the 48 hour week and Sen. Frederick Van Nuys, (D.) Ind., said that "modification of the 40 hour week cannot be stopped."

These statements followed President Roosevelt's announcement that he favors a 48 hour week as the best work schedule for efficient war production.

alist view, would not give him the control over broad defense policies which they sought.

All-India congress leaders say that unless they obtain control of Indian government, including defense, they can not proclaim that India is free and urge its people to join fully in the war effort of the United Nations.

British quarters clung to hope that a compromise could be negotiated on the basis of the latest British concessions, and suggested that the Nationalists themselves might help by making counter-proposals.

There's Nothing Patriotic About Riding On the Rim.

America has never won a war by dressing its Generals in rags. It wants you and the rest of America to look, act, work and fight like Americans . . . that's the reason they are letting men's clothiers stay in business.

The nation needs you . . . looking good.
